P R E F A C E.

THE ACT which was carried into effect in the Year 1801, "for taking an Account of the POPULATION of Great Britain, and of the Increase or Diminution thereof,"—having now been repeated in the Years 1811, 1821, and 1831, a Comparison of the Results of these National Investigations seems to be required, not only as the Population Abstracts, now Four in number, may hereafter be referred to in connection with each other, but because large volumes, consisting chiefly of Names and Figures, cannot be readily and effectually consulted without such previous Explanation as may serve to shew the Method and Order pursued in digesting and connecting the subject-matter of the ENUMERATION Abstract and of the PARISH-REGISTER Abstract; and in so doing on the present occasion, many of the OBSERVATIONS prefixed to the volume of 1821 will be repeated, with such additions as have become necessary from another Repetition of the Population Act, which not only affords a further comparison of Results, but has produced an additional mass of information, by entering into details never before subjected to national enquiry.

I.

Enumeration Abstract.

THE first Five Questions asked in the year 1831, are the same as those of 1811 and 1821; the other Nine Questions embracing a variety of details, require careful perusal by all those who are desirous of perfectly understanding the information thus laboriously collected throughout Great Britain; and the permission contained in the Act [11<sup>o</sup> Geo. IV. c. 30.] to issue explanations with the Schedules, was of further avail, as will appear in a subsequent part of this preface. The Questions of 1831, were as follows:—

QUESTIONS addressed to the OVERSEERS in England, and to the SCHOOLMASTERS in Scotland;

Who are respectively required to take an Account of the resident Population, by proceeding from House to House on the Thirtieth Day of May One thousand eight hundred and thirty-one, and on the Days immediately subsequent thereto, if One Day shall not be sufficient; and they are also required to specify in writing the Name of the Parish or Place in the Schedule, and whether it be usually called a Parish, Township, Tything, Quarter, or by what other Denomination. Individuals are to be numbered only in those Parishes, Townships or Places where they severally happen to be at the time of taking the account.

- 1st. How many inhabited Houses are there in your Parish, Township, or Place; and by how many Families are they occupied.
- 2nd. How many Houses are now building, and therefore not yet inhabited?
- 3rd. How many other Houses are uninhabited?
- 4th. What number of Families in your Parish, Township, or Place are chiefly employed in and maintained by Agriculture; or by Trade, Manufacture, or Handicraft; and how many Families are not comprised in either of the Two preceding Classes?

N.B. The total Number of Families in answer to this Question must correspond with the Number of Families in answer to the First Question; and if any Doubt shall arise as to the Class in which any Family or Families ought to be comprised, such Doubt is to be stated as a Remark, not omitting therein to specify in which Class such Family or Families may have been comprised in your Answer to the Fourth Question.

5th. How many Persons (including Children of whatever age) are there actually found within the Limits of your Parish, Township, or Place, at the Time of taking this Account, distinguishing Males and Females, and exclusive of Men actually serving in His Majesty's Regular Forces, or in the Militia, and exclusive of Seamen, either in His Majesty's Service, or belonging to registered Vessels?

Every Female Servant must be again entered under Question 13th.

6th. How many of the Males enumerated in answer to the 5th Question are upwards of Twenty Years old?

N. B. If this Number of Males upwards of Twenty Years old should differ materially [or otherwise, as compared to the Return of 1821] from One Half of the total Number of Males [in answer to Question 5th], some Error has probably been committed, and the Answer to this Question should be examined, and corrected, if necessary.

[§ In the Year 1821, the Number of Males in Great Britain returned as being upwards of Twenty Years of age, as also the Number of those under that age, somewhat exceeded 3,000,000; But in the City of London and other parts of the Metropolis generally the Number of Males upwards of Twenty Years of age preponderated; in other places, wherever the increase of Population has been unusually rapid, a contrary Result may be anticipated.]

7th. How many Males upwards of Twenty Years old are employed in Agriculture, including Graziers, Cowkeepers, Shepherds, and other Farm Servants, Gardeners (not taxed or taxable as Male Servants), and Nurserymen?

In answering this Question, you will carefully distinguish these Males into Three Classes; viz<sup>t</sup>, First, Occupiers of Land who constantly employ and pay One or more than One Labourer or Farm Servant in Husbandry; Secondly, Occupiers of Land who employ no Labourer other than of their own Family; Thirdly, Labourers in Husbandry and Farm Servants employed by Occupiers of the First Class.

8th. How many Males upwards of Twenty Years old are employed in Manufacture or in making Manufacturing Machinery; but not including Labourers in Warehouses, Porters, Messengers, &c.; who are to be included in a subsequent Class? [Question 11th.]

9th. How many Males upwards of Twenty Years old are employed in Retail Trade or in Handicraft, as Masters, Shopmen, Journeymen, Apprentices, or in any Capacity requiring Skill in the Business; but not including Labourers, Porters, Messengers, &c. who are to be included in a subsequent Class?

N. B. To enable you to answer this Question in a Manner satisfactory to yourself, a Half Sheet [Formula No. 2.] containing a List of the Denominations of several Trades is transmitted herewith, with blank Spaces and Lines for Entry of the Answers you obtain; (it being understood that if any Trade or Business carried on in your Parish or Place does not appear in the printed List, you will specify such Trade at Bottom of the said List,) making a Mark for each Male opposite to the Denomination of his proper Trade or Business, and adding all together for final Entry in the Schedule; to which Schedule you will annex the said printed List with your original Entries thereon.

10th. How many Males upwards of Twenty Years old are *Wholesale Merchants, Bankers, Capitalists, Professional Persons, Artists, Architects, Teachers, Clerks, Surveyors, and other Educated Men? And in answering this Question, you will include generally Persons maintaining themselves otherwise than by Manufacture, Trade, or bodily Labour.

[* A Retailer sells to the Consumer the Article sold.]

11th. How many Males upwards of Twenty Years old are Miners, Fishermen, Boatmen, Excavators of Canals, Roadmakers, Toll Collectors, or Labourers employed by Persons of the Three preceding Classes, [Questions 8th, 9th, 10th,] or otherwise employed in any Kind of bodily Labour, excepting in Agriculture? Labourers in Agriculture having been already entered in the proper Place.

12th. How many other Males upwards of Twenty Years old (not being taxable Servants under the next Question) have not been included in any of the foregoing Classes? Including, therefore, in answer to this Question, retired Tradesmen, Superannuated Labourers, and Males diseased or disabled in Body or Mind.

13th. How many Household Servants, including all Female Servants, and such Male Servants (of whatever Age) as are taxed or taxable as such; also Waiters and Attendants at Inns; distinguishing the Males upwards of Twenty Years of Age from the Males under Twenty Years of Age?

N. B. Observe that the Number of Males, in answer to Questions 7th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 11th, 12th, and 13th collectively, cannot be less than the Number of Males upwards of Twenty Years old, in answer to Question 6th; but will exceed that Number in consequence of including Male Servants under 20 Years of Age; and as a general Rule, always assign an Individual of mixed Occupation or Income to that by which he is supposed to profit more than by any other.

14th. If you have entered any Males in answer to the 8th Question, be pleased to specify the Manufacture or Manufactures in which they are employed; and what Proportion of the Number of those entered in answer to Question 11th are employed in any Quarry, Mines, Coal Pits, Fishery, or public Work now in progress?

15th. Referring to the number of Persons in the year 1821, to what cause do you attribute any remarkable difference in the number at present?

16th. Are there any other matters which you may think it necessary to remark in explanation of your answers to any of the preceding Questions?

For their assistance herein a prepared Formula (No. 1.) is transmitted with every Schedule, such as may be used in "proceeding from House to House on the 30th Day of May next, and on the Days immediately subsequent thereto, if one day shall not be sufficient," and by means of this Formula the account will be readily taken (in hard black-lead pencil or ink) by marks across the several Lines, thus:—

• The Population Acts of 1811, 1821 and 1831, directed the Enumeration to be made on the last Monday of the month of May, regard being thus had to the length of day, and the Midsummer Quarter Sessions, at which, or after which, the Returns were verified upon Oath. On future occasions Tuesday ought to be the day of Enumeration, because very many persons resident in London go from home on Saturday and return on Monday, thus becoming liable either to be omitted or twice enumerated.

view of national resources, insinuations were not wanting against the accuracy of the Enumeration; and as these objections obtained some currency at the time, and still exist among those who have not been attentive to the subject, it is fit in this place to explain the official machinery on which the Act of 1801, as well as the Three subsequent Decennial Acts, relied for due execution.

Throughout England and Wales the Questions were issued to the "Overseers of the Poor," (an Office established in the year 1572, and too well known for explanation to Englishmen) in the administration of which office these Overseers are bound to relieve, at the expense of their several Parishes or Townships, all the Poor who can substantiate their claim to such relief. A considerable scarcity had occurred in the Year 1795/6, and this was aggravated almost to famine in the Year 1800/1; that is to say, the defective Harvest of 1800 raised the price of Wheat to 110s. per Quarter, whereas the Average price of the preceding Ten Years had been 54s. per quarter. The Poor therefore applied in augmented numbers to the Overseers, and as Relief was usually afforded according to the number of children maintainable by each applicant, the Overseers could not fail to be informed of the full number of every family, infants included, in March 1801; and in Parishes not unusually large were almost able to state the Population from their personal knowledge, certainly able to detect any attempt at falsehood in answering the enquiry made by themselves from House to House; while in Families above the necessity of applying for relief, the number of Children and Servants is too well known to be falsified with success, did any conceivable temptation exist for misrepresentation. Add to this that the Overseers acted under the obligation of an Oath to make Return according to the best of their knowledge and belief; and that in most cases there are two or more Overseers in each Parish, who must be presumed to concur in wilful falsehood before the truth of their Return can be fairly questioned. It is almost needless to add, that the expense of relieving the Poor in England and Wales, which in the Year 1800 approached the Sum of Four Millions Sterling, had become Six Millions in 1811, and exceeded that sum in 1821; and in the Year ending March 1831 (Ten Weeks before the Enumeration recorded in these Volumes took place), the Relief of the Poor had amounted to £. 6,800,000; so that the Overseers of the Poor have had but too much reason to exercise habitual vigilance as to the number of Children, ever since the Population Acts became decennial.

The Poor Laws of Scotland are not in such active operation as to require the appointment of special officers; but the machinery for the execution of the Population Act has been usually deemed more perfect there than in England, inasmuch as it is committed to the care of the official Schoolmaster of each Parish: an institution peculiar to Scotland, which has existed in full vigour since the year 1696;* and as the Office of Precentor and Clerk of the Parochial Session for Poor Relief is often combined with that of Schoolmaster, the personal knowledge of the number of Children in every family appertains to the Schoolmaster in Scotland almost as effectually as to the Overseer in England, and the habit of regularity, together with the official knowledge of writing and arithmetic implied in the character of Schoolmaster, renders the Population Returns of Scotland quite as authentic, and obviously more methodical than those obtained from the Overseers of the Poor in England.

Thus the accuracy of the essential part of the Returns of Population, of the mere number of Males and Females in Great Britain, is placed beyond doubt; but as this principal enquiry afforded good opportunity of asking additional questions not admitting of such distinct answers, the Returns relative to Houses, Families, and Occupations remain to be discussed; and this not only because experience has shewn the necessity of some alterations, but because also (as already stated) further Questions were superadded in the recent enquiry of 1831, to which more particularly these prefatory remarks appertain.

In fact no Question entirely exempt from objection has been propounded, or perhaps can be propounded, except that which requires the actual number of Males and Females. The First Question has always been, "How many Inhabited Houses are there in your Parish, Township or Place; and by how many Families occupied?" This Question presumes that one house may be inhabited by more than one family; but what constitutes a distinct House is not, and perhaps cannot be defined. A Cottage containing two families, that is of two tenements, seems to have been principally in view of the framers of the Act of 1801, when they required the number of Houses in contradistinction to the number of Families: but whether a College or Inn of Court, or a Town-House in Scotland, containing as many separate habitations as Stories or "Flats," is to be deemed one House or many, has always been left to the opinion of those who make the Return; Stables and Out-houses to which Bed-rooms are

* The "Teachers of Youth" were in Scotland recognized and placed under regulation by statute A.D. 1567; and Parochial Schools were established by law in Scotland A.D. 1696.

are sometimes attached have in some instances been returned as inhabited Houses; but these questionable cases are of rare occurrence, and do not materially affect the general result, which shewed rather more than Fifty-eight persons to Ten inhabited Houses in 1801; and exactly Fifty-eight persons in 1831.

That part of the first Question which requires the number of Families, is even more difficult of definition than that regarding the Houses in which they live. The degree of connection between the head of the family and the Inmates or Lodgers who reside under the same roof, is too various for description in an Act of Parliament. When the Overseers or Schoolmasters have expressed a doubt upon this subject, reply has been made, "that those who use the same Kitchen and board together are to be deemed members of the same family." But even then remains the Question whether a single person inhabiting a House solely, or lodging, but not boarding in another Man's House, is to be deemed a Family? This admits only of an unsatisfactory reply, "that it cannot be otherwise;" and by this negative paralogism, is decided in the affirmative. The general Return of 1801 shewed that every Ten families (as then reckoned) contained Forty-eight individuals; and in 1831 the Result is similar.

The number of Uninhabited Houses in 1801 was one in Twenty-eight, which proportion in 1821 had increased to one in Twenty-four; but the Question had been divided in the enquiries subsequent to 1801, for the sake of distinguishing New but Unfinished Houses, and therefore not yet inhabited, from Houses uninhabited from any other cause; and the propriety of thus distinguishing the former, an indication of prosperity,—from Houses in decay, or uninhabited from any cause authorizing an opposite inference,—needs no explanation;—and this division of the question accounts for part of the seemingly increased proportion of uninhabited Houses, new Houses in different stages of completion not having been numbered as Houses in 1801.

The question of 1801 relating to the Occupations of Persons, was found in practice to produce no valuable result. In some cases a Householder seemed to understand that the females of his family, his children, and servants ought to be classed with himself; in some cases he returned them in the negative class, as being neither agricultural nor commercial; in some cases he omitted them entirely. Thus the failure of the question became manifest, and the worthless answers were entered without attempt at correction.

The question concerning Occupation or Employment as amended in the Population Acts of 1811, 1821, and 1831, enquires, What number of Families [not of Persons] are chiefly employed in or maintained by Agriculture? How many by Trade, Manufacture or Handicraft? and how many Families are not comprized in either of these classes?—and in general the Answers appeared to have been made with care and distinctness in the years 1811 and 1821; but a more particular classification was thought to be desirable and practicable in 1831; and it was recommended to the Committee of the House of Commons, to ask the occupation or employment of every male Twenty years of age; not only because he is then usually settled in his vocation, but because the number of Males under Twenty years of age, and the number upwards of Twenty years of age, was found to have been so equal in the enumeration of 1821, that any considerable deviation from that obvious proportion was likely to induce further enquiry, and correction in every case suspected of error; for in the Enumeration of 1821 the Males under Twenty were 3,072,392,—upwards of Twenty 3,002,200; including all the Males whose Ages were then ascertained. In the Enumeration of 1831, the Males known to be under Twenty were 3,941,495,—upwards of Twenty 3,944,511;* indeed, the Increase of Population in Great Britain has not been materially accelerated or retarded since the year 1801, having been always about one and a half per cent. per Annum.

The new classification of Males upwards of Twenty Years of age, fills an entire page throughout the Two Enumeration Volumes. The agricultural class is now distributed into three columns, which have been found to lead to valuable results; viz. The families of Occupiers of land who employ Labourers are in number 144,600,—of Occupiers who do not employ Labourers, 130,500,—and of Agricultural Labourers 686,000;† the two first of these distinctions being deemed more generally illustrative of the grade and condition of those under whose care the soil is cultivated, than the number of acres occupied, or the amount of rental; the first of these two facts affording no information whatever, considering the amount of Capital invested in the occupation of Ten Acres of Garden-ground or Nursery, as compared to the little or no Capital requisite for the occupation of a similar extent of woodland.

* The Army, Navy, &c. are not included.

† That is, respectively as 15, 14, and 71 per cent. of the whole number of Families (961,100) employed in Agriculture.

woodland or rough pasture, and the almost infinite gradations between these extremes. Whether the amount of Rental or the annual value of House and Land, be a fit question, is doubtful; certainly it would not be answered so as to afford a genuine result.

The number of those employed in Manufacture is next asked, and the species of Manufactures, as far as such can be distinguished and designated in a Note. These Notes are collected into a Summary at the end of each county; not in columns (which was impracticable) but in narrative, such as each individual case permitted or required.

The number of those employed in Retail trade and Handicraft (as distinguished from Manufacture) appears in the next column; this was supposed to be capable of Subdivision; and after much consideration and correspondence with the Members of Parliament, who had constituted the Committee on the Population Bill, a List was issued with each Schedule, containing one hundred of the most usual denominations of Retail-trade and Handicraft, as follows:—

This List was known to contain far less than the entire number of Trades in large towns, especially in the Metropolis, where in the result not less than 1420 Subdivisions of trade were found to exist; but a greater number than one hundred would have been inapplicable and even perplexing in rural parishes, and the space left at the bottom of the List, as well as the List itself, was so attentively and correctly filled, that the defective specification does not exceed one in one hundred and twelve Males upwards of Twenty years of age employed in Retail-trade or Handicraft; the Lists returned by all the Parishes constituting the Metropolis do not present a single defect: a remarkable instance of accuracy.

Persons of independent fortune, Capitalists, Professional, and other Educated Men, and, generally speaking, those who do not labour with their hands, are included in the next Question:—to these succeed, in another column, all Labourers other than agricultural; and the next column embraces all those not described in any preceding question which applies to Males Twenty years of age. To this indeed there is one exception, as to domestic Male Servants, who are subsequently distinguished as of Twenty years old, and under that age; Female Servants, of whatever age, have been distinctly enumerated.

In what degree this minute analysis of Social life may be useful in Statistical investigation, experience only can decide, this being the first example on a large scale, and the division of labour being more complicated in Great Britain than elsewhere, in proportion to the capital accumulated and employed.

It was not foreseen that the scrutinizing nature of all these precise Questions concerning Males upwards of Twenty years of age would at all affect the Return of the Occupation of Families, which in 1831 was asked in the same terms as in 1811 and 1821; and considerable surprise was excited when the proportion of Families employed in Agriculture, as well as those employed in Trade in 1831, was found to have decreased as compared to the same classes in 1811 and 1821 respectively.

The Comparative proportion of Families stands thus in Centesimal parts:—

|               |       | AGRICULTURE. | TRADE, &c. | OTHERS. | TOTAL. |
|---------------|-------|--------------|------------|---------|--------|
| GREAT BRITAIN | 1811— | 35           | 44         | 21      | 100    |
|               | 1821— | 33           | 46         | 21      | 100    |
|               | 1831— | 28           | 42         | 30      | 100    |

Thus Trade and Manufactures appear to have somewhat increased between the years 1811 and 1821, Agriculture to have somewhat declined; but between 1821 and 1831, the proportion of Families employed in Trade receded from 46 to 42 per cent., and the agricultural population from 33 to 28 per cent.; the proportion of all other Families, not included in these two large classes, having increased accordingly.

Yet no decay of industry was visible, certainly not in trade or manufactures; nor was the fallacy immediately discovered to spring from an inconsiderate notion, that those not employed in Agriculture, Trade or Manufactures were not employed at all: and without more attention than could be expected in any cursory inspection of the Population Volumes of 1811 and 1821, this was an obvious conclusion. But in the present Summary of Returns of 1831, it appears that no less than 608,712 Labourers were then employed otherwise than in Agriculture (that is, as Miners or Fishermen, in Inland Navigation, and Road-making;) or otherwise than in Trade or Manufactures, although employed in the conveyance of commodities, and in other essential services to the Tradesman and Manufacturer. It also appears in the Summary of 1831, that 115 or 116 [115.5] Males upwards of Twenty years of age represent 100 Families; so that of the proportion of Families (30 per cent.) ascribed to the last class, which has been usually deemed non-productive, no more than 12 per cent.* are really so, even in the largest sense to which that character can be applied; and the residue of these Families, (18 per cent.), has been augmented in the Enumeration of 1831 beyond its former proportion, by reason of a deduction from the Families heretofore classed as Agricultural, or as employed in Trade, Manufacture or Handicraft. The explanation of this in the following manner

* The Males who represent the Families in Column 7 of the Summary [p. xii.] are included in Columns 17, 18, 19, and 20, [p. xii.] and amount to 1,137,270; but of these 608,712 are actual labourers, [Column 18] and 78,669 are employed as Domestic Servants [Column 20], leaving but 449,889 to represent 12 per cent. out of the 30 per cent. Families supposed to be unemployed; and of these 449,889, (about half) of the Males in Column 19, are superannuated Labourers, thus reducing to 6 per cent. in place of 30 per cent. the class of families who subsist without manual labour. Strictly speaking a large number [Column 12] of the occupiers of land who employ labourers may be said not to subsist by manual labour; but they are so nearly allied to it and in such various degrees, that no computation of the exempted number can be hazarded.

manner requires attentive perusal:—The Overseer in England, who knew that many industrious labourers in his Parish were employed in Mines, or in Road-making, and otherwise during the larger portion of the twelvemonth, but were occasionally employed in harvest, or in the cultivation of their own gardens,—was heretofore induced to class these as Agricultural rather than in the column which seemed to denote idleness or no employment at all; but when (as in 1831) a distinct column was assigned to useful labour of whatever kind, he placed them in it, and having so classed them, he could not consistently class their Families in the Agricultural column,—which was thereby lessened in amount, and the seemingly non-productive column of families proportionally increased. The Schoolmaster in Scotland did the same with respect to Miners, and to a larger extent as regarding Fishermen, an employment which seldom being constant throughout the twelvemonth, tended especially to create this kind of discrepancy from the former classification of Families; as indeed several of the Schoolmasters explain distinctly in their observations appended to the returned Schedules.*

The similar transference of the Families of labourers employed by tradesmen and manufacturers to the class of Trade and Manufacture in 1811 and 1821, was a more obvious consequence

The Abstract of the Returns obtained from the Islands in the British Seas, is not included in this General Summary

The Number of Males designated as ARMY, NAVY, &c. includes the Regular Army, The Artillery, and the Staff of Militia Regiments not under training, all according to official documents; but the Militia under training on the 31st May 1831 (not much exceeding 2,000 in number) are added to the Males of their respective Counties. With the Navy are included The Royal Marines: and to these are added The Seamen employed in navigating the

* Of the 608,712 labourers in Column 18, no less than 106,000 are stated in the observations on the face of the respective Schedules and appear in the printed Notes, to be chiefly employed in Mines, Fisheries, and other branches of productive industry; and their Families seem to have been very generally transferred by the Overseers and Schoolmasters from Columns 5 and 6, to Column 7.

quence of the same repugnance to dismiss these industrious men into a seemingly non-productive class, and they being now as Individuals placed in an appropriate column, their Families could not consistently be left in the column of families employed in Trade, Manufactures or Handicraft; whereby the proportion of that class of Families was diminished, in like manner and in similar proportion to the diminution of Agricultural Families:—and in the City of London many of the Families of those persons who are now placed in the column of wholesale Merchants and Capitalists, were therefore transferred from the Second to the Third class of Families, as stated in notes explanatory of this variation from the Return of 1821. A memorable example of the danger of altering, even in the slightest degree, any Question intended to produce a comparative Answer: indeed in this instance the Question was not actually altered, yet its comparative result has been vitiated and indeed annulled by asking a collateral question which was not foreseen to have any bearing upon it. In truth, the similar Questions as to Families and to individuals were simultaneously asked in 1831, with an expectation, that hereafter the Question as to Individuals might (by application of the Rule of Proportion to the 1831 Return) supersede any future question as to Families, the preliminary objection to which has been already stated, and the comparative result is here proved to have been defective in accuracy from unforeseen causes.

of Great Britain, but appears in an Appendix (A.) subjoined to the Enumeration Abstract.

Revenue Cutters and Registered Vessels; and Convicts on board the Hulks.—None of these Classes can be ascribed to particular Counties, nor consequently taken into account in the foregoing Summary, otherwise than in the General Total;—nor properly in that, without making allowance for Foreigners employed as Merchant Seamen, nor without considering, that many Soldiers and Sailors are attributable to Ireland; which consideration would operate proportionally upon the larger Number of Men serving in 1811, as compared with the smaller Number in 1821 and 1831.

The Rate of Increase of the Population of Great Britain has not varied much during the last Thirty Years, even when the Increase or Diminution of the Army, Navy, &c. is taken into the calculation; but the most accurate knowledge of the Increase of Population may be obtained obtained by adverting to the Increase of the Female Sex exclusively; thereby virtually omitting throughout the Calculation such of the Army, Navy, and Merchant Seamen as were not domiciled in Great Britain.

And the absolute Increase of Population in Great Britain (if measured by doubling that of FEMALES only) appears to have been about One Million and a Half in the first period, Two Millions in the second period, and Two Millions and a Quarter in the third period of Ten Years; or always about  $1\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. per annum. The progressive Increase of Population in the several Counties is shown at the end of this Preface.

How far such Increase is sustained by a comparison of the Baptisms with the Burials (as entered in the Parish Registers) during these periods, will be discussed in a subsequent part of these Observations; in this place it seems proper rather to explain the order in which the Enumeration Returns have been digested for ready Reference,—such Explanation being necessary, or at least serviceable to all who may have occasion to consult the Population Abstract.

The Name of ENGLAND was established, A.D. 800, when Egbert assumed the Sovereign authority. Several of the Counties are mentioned before the extinction of the Saxon Heptarchy, the smaller Provinces or Kingdoms of which became Counties, as Kent, Sussex, Surrey and Essex. Hampshire, Somersetshire, Wiltshire and Berkshire (portions or shires of the Kingdom of Wessex), are mentioned before the accession of King Alfred [A. D. 871.]; Devon and Cornwall about the same time, Gloucestershire soon after, and most of the other Counties, from South to North, are named in history previously to the Norman Conquest.* In the Population Abstract the Counties are placed in Alphabetical order, and in England each distinctly; but in Scotland it has been found necessary to join together the Shires of Cromarty and Ross, the former being as it were scattered in about Fifteen separate fragments throughout the latter, and being indeed usually considered in modern Laws as forming part of it. Much inconvenience is experienced by the Inhabitants of the Shires of Ross and Cromarty from these numerous “Annexations,” which were made by authority of two Acts of the Parliament of Scotland in 1685 and 1698, in favour of an Individual, whose estate was thus consolidated into one jurisdiction. But the irregularities of this kind in England are not so numerous nor so extensive as to create serious inconvenience; certainly less than would result from the change of accustomed limits, which have remained unaltered, certainly from the date of the Norman Conquest.† The irregularities of limit now recognised are carefully specified in the Notes of the Enumeration Abstract wherever they occur, and are collected into one view at the end of that abstract. (pp. 1064–7.) Ten Cities are, technically speaking, Counties of themselves: LONDON (which having the same Sheriffs as the County of Middlesex creates little inconvenience by its situation locally in that County;) BRISTOL, CANTERBURY, COVENTRY, EXETER, GLOUCESTER, LICHFIELD, LINCOLN, NORWICH, WORCESTER, YORK. In like manner Five Towns in England are Counties of themselves: Kingston-on-HULL, NEWCASTLE-on-Tyne, NOTTINGHAM, POOL, and SOUTHAMPTON; also Two Towns in Wales, CAERMARTHEN County-Borough, and HAVERFORDWEST.

The further Division of the Southern parts of England into Hundreds is also unquestionably of Saxon origin, and probably in imitation of similar districts which existed in their parent Country:‡ but in what manner the Name was here applied, is not certain. At least one hundred (which in Saxon Numeration means one hundred and twenty§) Free Men, Householders, answerable for each other, may be supposed originally to have been found in each Hundred; for that the Hundreds were originally regulated by the Free Population is evident from the great number of Hundreds in the Counties first peopled by the Saxons. Thus Kent and Sussex at the time when Domesday Book was compiled, each contained more than

* The Chronology of Events in the obscure Anglo-Saxon period of our history has been carefully and judiciously investigated by Sir Francis Palgrave, and is given (with original authorities) in his “English Commonwealth.”

† From the Domesday Book of the Conqueror [completed A.D. 1086] it is known that County limits have since that time undergone no alteration; in fact they have been jealously maintained. An attempt was made by Lord Chancellor Clarendon to transfer to Berkshire that part of the Parish of Wokingham, which is part of Wiltshire, although surrounded by Berks; but the Bill was rejected. A modern attempt (A. D. 1825) failed in like manner.

‡ Tacitus seems to allude to a Hundred-Court: Eliguntur et principes qui jura per pagos vicosque reddunt. Centeni singulis ex plebe comites, concilium simul et auctoritas, adsunt. De Morib. Germani.

than Sixty Hundreds, as they do at present; and in the Counties which composed the ancient Kingdom of Wessex, the Hundreds are almost as numerous, while the irregularity of size, and the scattered confusion of the component parts of several of these antient Hundreds must have been the result of usurpation or of improvident grants, very inconsistent with the good purpose for which Hundreds were established. On the contrary, Norfolk and Suffolk (the East Anglian Counties) maintain a regularity of Division still applicable, in many instances, to the administration of justice. In the Midland Counties the Hundreds increase in size, but are not deficient in regularity. In Lancashire (a County of greater extent than any of the Wessex Counties) there are no more than Six Hundreds,—in Cheshire, Seven: and upon the whole, so irregular is this distribution of territory, that while some of the southern Hundreds do not exceed two square Miles in area, nor One thousand Persons in Population, the Hundreds of Lancashire average at Three Hundred square Miles in area, and the Population contained in one of them (Salford Hundred) is 430,000.

This striking irregularity seems to have been felt as an inconvenience as early as the time of Henry VIII., when a remedy was attempted by ordaining Divisions (called also Limits or Circuits) which still exist (more or less manifestly) in most of the English Counties. These Divisions appear to have been formed by a junction of small Hundreds, or a partition of large Hundreds, as convenience required in each particular case, and are recognized in subsequent Acts which regard the Maintenance and Relief of the Poor.

But time, which had caused the irregularity of the ancient Hundreds, gradually has the same effect on more modern arrangements; so that to alter the Names or Limits of the ancient Hundreds would really be equivalent to inventing and being forced to learn a new and changeable language, instead of retaining in use that which has been established for ages. An instance of the inconvenience of such reform occurs in Wales, several of the Counties of which were created by Act of Parliament in 1535, and the ancient Districts called Cantrefs and Commots altered into Hundreds, by virtue of a Commission under the Great Seal for that purpose; but the new Counties and Hundreds exhibit more instances of indistinct boundary, that is, of Parishes and Townships not conterminous with the County or Hundred, than do the ancient Counties; while the abolished Cantrefs and Commots are not yet quite forgotten after a lapse of 300 years, and occasionally cause some confusion.

See p. 834 of the Enum. Abst.

Such Innovations are really unnecessary, as Temporary Districts for present convenience will always be settled by the Civil Magistrates, or by custom, around each place where Petty Sessions are usually holden: * and in like manner for the business of the Lieutenancy of each County, Sub-Divisions are formed from the ancient Hundreds, subject to such alteration as circumstances may require.

The County of York is divided into Wapentakes instead of Hundreds, and the adjoining Counties of Lincoln and Nottingham contain instances of Wapentakes; a word evidently of warlike origin; and in the Four Northern Counties of England, liable to predatory incursions until the Union of England and Scotland, the frequent occasion for Military Array predominated over the peaceful purpose of civil jurisdiction, and produced the Division and Sub-Division of Wards, still retained in use in place of the Hundreds of other Counties.

Where the Divisions are very ancient, as the Lathes of Kent and the Rapes of Sussex, or where necessary from the multiplicity of the Hundreds, as in Hampshire and Dorset, they are preserved, and their several Hundreds ranged under them. The Rapes of Sussex were Military Governments at the time when Domesday Book was compiled, the Conqueror having stationed his principal Captains there, in such manner as to secure a ready passage to and from the coast, and thereby his communication with Normandy: The Lathes of Kent seem to have been Civil Jurisdictions and of earlier date, connected perhaps with the Cinque Ports, and for defence of the Coast against invasion. Hampshire and Dorset have been arranged (time out of mind) in Divisions which obviate the inconvenience of numerous small Hundreds, and have been adopted in all the Population Abstracts. In the Years 1829 and 1830, Acts of Parliament were passed [9<sup>o</sup> G. IV. c. 43, & 10<sup>o</sup> G. IV. c. 46] “For the better regulation of Divisions in the several Counties of England and Wales;”—and several Counties have availed themselves of the power thus given to Justices of the Peace in their General Quarter Sessions, the newly established Divisions having been enrolled accordingly. This novelty was understood chiefly to be intended for the more convenient Licensing of Public Houses; a purpose which soon afterwards became of little importance, from a change of the Law as to the Sale of Beer. But whatever be the convenience resulting from such new Divisions

* Information has been requested from the several Clerks of the Peace, as to the number of places in England and Wales where Petty Sessions or Divisional Meetings are usually holden; they amount to 609; and the number of acting County Magistrates is 5,321; but many of these no doubt act under more than one Commission of the Peace, which must make the real number much less. (For particulars, see p. xlix.)

Divisions of Counties, they cannot be adopted in the present, nor indeed in any future Population Abstract; because thereby would be destroyed the power of comparing every portion of each County with the same portion in former Abstracts; such comparison being essential for Statistical purposes.

One exception to the general arrangement occurs in regard to the larger Towns, which as usual are placed at the end of their several Counties. For this there is a better reason than at first sight appears: Corporate Towns and some other places have a peculiar Jurisdiction, and really are not in any Hundred. The degree of separation and exemption varies infinitely, as might be expected, and cannot be reduced to any general rule, being indeed sometimes a subject of Litigation. Hence the strict propriety of placing many Cities and Towns at the end of the respective Counties:—and for the sake of comparison, other Towns, which have risen into importance since the disuse of granting Charters and Immunities, are placed with the rest, although these towns are for every other purpose included within some Hundred of the County. The most ready way therefore of finding the Population of a principal Town, is to refer to the Summary of its County, before searching for the Hundred in which it is locally situate, where however a proper reference will always be found. The METROPOLIS presents an unusual difficulty, as extending into Two Counties, and therefore has been necessarily inserted distinctly in an Appendix.* In the County Summaries the Total of entire Hundreds is given; in the Body of the County all recognized Sub-divisions of the Hundred are distinguished, each with its separate Total.

So far the arrangement of the ensuing Volume differs little from those of 1801, 1811, and 1821, nor indeed from the several Poors Rate Returns; nor ought it to differ from established precedent, without good reason for so doing. But the very repetition of such enquiries has been found to render it absolutely necessary to enter more minutely into the relative connection and the identity of places than before. This necessity will best be understood by stating, that there are in England and Wales about 550 Parishes which are known to extend into Two Counties, or into more than One Hundred, or other Division; and that every one of these places creates a danger of Duplicate Entry. No person entrusted with the care of rendering complete the Population Returns, can fail to refer to all preceding Authorities; nor, doing so, can fail to apply for Returns to Parish Officers, who apparently, but not really, have made default: Nor can any effort of memory prevent this; the orthography of the Names of Places being somewhat unsettled, and indeed many names identically the same occurring too often to permit any certain recognition of the same place. The best method of avoiding these difficulties appeared to lie in a more careful attention to the Parochial connection of places; besides that for many purposes, especially Ecclesiastical, the knowledge of the Population of a Parish is at least as useful as that of its component parts. The Instruction prefixed to the Questions of the Printed Schedule was intended to produce Information of this kind; which indeed had before been asked with some effect, as appears in the Poor Return Abstract of 1803; with the help of which and of subsequent Returns, it is hoped that a successful attempt has been made, to ascertain the Parochial connection of all places in Great Britain; so that no Parish should be named in the Enumeration Abstract without a Reference to all its component parts; and that no such part should be named without a Reference to its Parish; and this whether the whole Parish be in the same County, or otherwise disjoined in entry. During the Debates in Parliament in the Committee on the Reform of Parliament Bill in 1831, which mainly turned on the Population and Connection of places, the accuracy with which this unheeded labour had been performed in 1821, was subjected to a severe test, and in no instance was proved to be defective or imperfect: in this attempt some difficulty occurred, which renders it necessary to enter into a brief Statement respecting the Parochial Division of the Kingdom; which may be deemed Ecclesiastical rather than Civil.

The Country Parishes of England (in the modern sense of the word Parish) seem originally to have been of the same extent and limits as the several Manors; nor could it well be otherwise, because when it became settled, during the Ninth and Tenth Centuries, that Tythe was generally due to the Church, every Lord of an independent Manor would of course appoint a Chaplain or Clergyman of his own, in default of which the Tythe would have become due to the nearest Mother Church. Hence the Parochial Division of England appears to have been nearly the same as now established, in the Taxatio Ecclesiastica, which was compiled in the Reign of King Edward the First. (A. D. 1288—1292.)

In the Towns indeed there is considerable variation, personal Tythes having been much more productive before the Reformation of Religion than afterwards, and consequently a greater number of Clergymen maintained in populous places. Thus the City of London (within and without the Walls; but not including the Borough of Southwark) which now reckons One Hundred and Eight Parishes, forming no more than Seventy-two Ecclesiastical Benefices, had at that time One hundred and Forty; Norwich in like manner is reduced from Seventy Parishes to Thirty-seven, and other ancient Cities in proportion; a sufficient indication that the number of Parishes in Towns was formerly suffered to increase in proportion to the Population: and (besides that personal Tythes and Dues must always have been in a great degree voluntary,) it appears from the Taxatio Ecclesiastica, that the Profits accruing from one and the same Parish were not confined to one Spiritual Person, nor even to one Religious House or Community. Under such circumstances, it is not likely that Town-Parishes were strictly limited either in number or extent; but the conflicting Rights of Tythe-Owners, and the Perambulations ordained by The Canon Law, must have established the Boundaries of Country Parishes much earlier.

In later times the Boundary of every Parish has been gradually settled with precision, and indeed rendered immutable by any authority short of a special legislative enactment. This exactness has been produced by the Laws for the Maintenance and Relief of the Poor, whose claims on a Parish being regulated by their legal Settlement in it, and the Assessment or Poor's Rate which takes place in consequence, being levied according to the property of the other Inhabitants, a double motive for ascertaining the Boundary of a Parish continually subsists, and has been frequently a subject of litigation since the Poor Laws became burdensome.

When this began to take place, the Parishes of the Northern Counties were found to be much too large for the due administration of the Poor Laws, which must always be founded upon a personal knowledge of the situation and character of every one applying for relief; and is therefore a subject to which no general rule can with propriety be applied. The inconvenience which was felt in the Northern Counties from this cause will be easily explained, by stating, that Thirty or Forty square Miles is there no unusual area of a Parish; and that (generally speaking) Parishes in the North average at Seven or Eight times the area of those in the Southern Counties.

Hence in the 13th year of Charles II. (soon after his Restoration) a Law was passed, permitting Townships and Villages, though not entire Parishes, severally and distinctly to maintain their own Poor, assigning as a reason for this innovation, "That the Inhabitants of Lancashire, Cheshire, Derbyshire, Yorkshire, Northumberland, the Bishoprick of Durham, Cumberland, and Westmorland, and many other Counties of England and Wales, by reason of the largeness of the Parishes within the same, have not and cannot reap the benefit of the Act of Parliament (43<sup>o</sup> ELIZ.) for the Relief of the Poor."

Under this Law the Townships of the North have become as distinctly limited in practice as if they were separate Parishes;* and of course make separate Returns, which in the Abstract of 1801 are placed alphabetically in their several Wards and Hundreds, but are now arranged under their respective Parishes; whereby the perplexity arising from a crowd of explanatory Notes has been avoided, and the convenience of those who have occasion to ascertain the Population of a whole Parish, is best consulted. This arrangement appeared in all the Counties North of the Humber and the Dee, and occasionally elsewhere, in the Abstract of 1811, and was extended throughout the Kingdom in the Abstract of 1821; it originated in Northumberland and Westmorland, but in extending it to the Southern Counties, the place which gives name to the whole Parish is always called Parish, though it be only part of the Parish (the less important designation merging in the other); nor could this be avoided without departing from the customary manner of speaking. A proper Note of Reference will always be found to accompany the name of every Parish which occurs oftener than once, as not wholly contained in the same Hundred or other Division. Besides this immediate and indispensable purpose of the Notes (which exceed 4,300 in number), they will be found to embrace such other information as may tend to elucidate the arrangement and connection of places, or to obviate doubts which frequently arise where well-known places seem to have been omitted, being indeed included in the Return of their Parish. Many * Yet in some cases the above Law of Cha. II. has not been deemed to have effected its purpose finally, so that the Townships seem to remain always liable to separation and partition upon application to neighbouring Magistrates: an opinion by which private property is largely endangered, and a new source of Litigation opened, Might it not be judicious to prevent these evils by a declaratory Law, against alteration of the limit of any District, now recognized as maintaining the Poor separately?

Notes are of a miscellaneous kind, extracted from the Returns themselves, whenever the information contained in them appeared to be explanatory of any remarkable increase or diminution of the Population, or of the employment of any particular class of Labourers or Manufacturers. Indeed no useful information has been omitted.

P. 1. c. 12.

In attempting an arrangement of the kind above described, comprehending the whole Kingdom, the Question, What is a Parish? has often occurred, and has been found not easily determinable. It has been asserted, that a Parochial Chapel is that which had the privileges of administering the Sacraments (especially that of Baptism) and the Office of Burial. "For the liberties of Baptism and Sepulture are the true distinct Parochial Rights: and if any new Oratory had acquired and enjoyed this immunity, then it differed not from a Parish Church. And till the year 1300, in all trials of the Rights of particular Churches, if it could be proved that any Chapel had a custom for free Baptism and Burial, such place was adjudged to be a Parochial Church." But however true this may have been until the date of the Tuxatio Ecclesiastica before mentioned,—in the present sense of the word Parish, it is evidently fallacious, inasmuch as almost every Chapel of Ease would thereby constitute a separate Parish: and in the various degrees of the dependence of Chapels on their Mother Churches (as some rule must be adhered to) it has been deemed safe to assume, that where the Curate is appointed and removable by the Incumbent of the Mother Church, and more certainly where Church-Rates still continue to be paid towards the Repair of such Church, the Chapelry is not Parochial. On the other hand, a perpetual Curacy has not been struck out of the List of Parishes merely because the Curate is appointed by the Incumbent of the Mother Church, his permanent Tenure (especially if the Curacy has been augmented under the Laws which direct the distribution of Queen Anne's Bounty), seeming to alter the case materially. The Churches built under the Act of 1818 [58° G. III. c. 45.] for "Building and promoting the building of additional Churches in populous Parishes," have created another class of doubtful Parishes, so that the total number of Parishes (ecclesiastically speaking) is materially increased during the last Ten or Twelve years; and for any general purpose the number of Parishes and Parochial Chapelries in England and Wales may safely be taken at - - - - - 10,700.

The Number of places in England and Wales of which the Population is distinctly stated in the present Abstract, is - - - - - 15,609.

The Number of Parishes in Scotland is 948; of Population Returns is - 1,046.

It has been found practicable in this Volume, without too much increasing the Notes, to state in one Total the number of Inhabitants in each Parish, when returned in Townships or Tythings; not without an especial view to the Ecclesiastical purposes of the Population Abstract, as regarding the Cure of Souls, and the degree of accommodation afforded in the several Parish Churches; the total number of persons in each Parish being every where shown in the Note referring to such Parish; or to the largest part of a Parish, when not entirely in the same County, Hundred, or other Division. In such cases, before the word Parish, the words (part of) are inserted.

So much labour having been bestowed in settling the parochial division of England and Wales, the larger Ecclesiastical division into Dioceses ought not to be unnoticed; wherefore the number of Parishes and other particulars, with the Population of each Diocese or Bishoprick, has been carefully selected from the several Counties, and is here inserted.*

* The number of Benefices is here given on the authority of an official document, annexed to a Return presented to the House of Commons (21st May 1830), in pursuance of an Address, for "a Return of the number of Parish Churches and Chapels, and Chapels of Ease of the Church of England;" and for "a Return of the number of Places of Worship not of the Church of England in each Parish, distinguishing (as far as possible) of what Sect or Persuasion, and the Total number of each Sect, in England and Wales." This Address is here mentioned as an example not fit to be imitated in future; the terms of it being so vague that scarcely any two of the Returns from Dioceses or Counties resemble each other, the whole forming an incongruous mass, from which no conclusion can be drawn. Several of the Clerks of the Peace, who were called upon for a Return of the Description and Number of Dissenters, and of their Places of Worship, contented themselves with answering, that they had no official knowledge of these particulars; others, with more zeal than prudence, issued a Circular Letter to every place in their respective Counties, and the little value of the Answers received may be estimated by observing, that the Address appearing to extend beyond Public Meeting-houses, and regularly Licensed places of worship, was variously understood as to what constituted "a place of worship;" that the number of Dissenters in some Counties was understood to refer to Families, in others to Communicants, in others to include Infants;—and the various Returns of the Sects or Persuasions are equally loose and unsatisfactory. These different versions of the meaning of the Address were perhaps inevitable; but in any case, to circulate Questions unaccompanied by a Printed Formula, whereby to insure uniform Answer, can only obtain a vague, or at best an unmanageable Return. The expense incurred in the several Counties in procuring useless answers to the above Address, must have amounted to many thousand pounds.

To arrive at a settled Orthography of the Names of places would manifestly be for general convenience, and this object has not been slighted, the Name which appeared on each Return not having been adopted without collation with the former Population Abstract of 1811, and occasionally with the several Poor Return Abstracts, whereby frequent errors have been corrected; but it is to be understood that this kind of correction has been applied only to the Enumeration Returns, not to those from the Clergymen; so that in the Parish Register Abstract, every name will be found exactly as it appeared to be written in the original Return.

Besides Parishes and their Tythings or Townships, there are many places not contained within the Limits of any Parish, and thence called Extra-Parochial; and from some of these, Returns of their Population are not easily procurable. They are found usually to have been Royal Palaces, or the site of Religious Houses, or of ancient Castles, the owners of which were unwilling to permit any interference with their authority within their own property; and in rude times, the existence of such exemptions, obtained from the Crown by pecuniary purchase or favour, is not surprising. At present the case is widely different; and there seems to be no good reason for permitting Extra-Parochial places still to avoid sharing the burthens borne by the rest of the Community. For an Extra-Parochial place enjoys a virtual exemption from maintaining the Poor, because there is no Overseer on whom a Magistrate's Order may be served; from the Militia Laws, because there is no Constable to make Returns; from repairing the Highways, because there is no Surveyor; besides all which, the Inhabitants have a chance of escaping from direct taxation of every kind. For in the language of the ancient law of England, such places were not 'Geldable nor Shireground,' non sub districtione curiæ Vicecomitis; and as the Sheriff was the Receiver General in his County till about the time of the Revolution, Extra-Parochial places were neither taxable nor within the ordinary pale of civil jurisdiction; and the Inhabitants are still virtually exempt from many civil duties and offices served not without inconvenience by others for the benefit of the community at large.

The number of such places is not inconsiderable, though difficult to be discovered; the present volumes exhibit above 200 of them; and the subject is the more worthy of attention, inasmuch as the acquisition of new Land, whether by reclaiming Forests, Drainage of Fens, or Embankment from the Sea, furnishes frequent occasion for endeavouring even now to establish Extra-Parochial Immunities.

The subject of complaint being an unreasonable exemption from certain general Laws, the remedy might be applied to that defect only; so that all places, where any person is found ready to act as Overseer of the Poor, Constable, and Surveyor of the Highways, might be permitted to remain as they are; but the Magistrates of each County should be empowered to annex all other Extra-Parochial places to adjoining Parishes for the purposes above described. Districts of larger extent may be found, which under the name of Liberties interrupt the general course of Law as affecting Hundreds, in like manner as Extra-Parochial places that of Parishes. In Dorsetshire, where this irregularity chiefly prevails, the Grants of some of these Liberties are dated so late as the Reign of Henry VIII. and even of Elizabeth. The proper Remedy for the Inconveniencies arising out of these improvident Grants, might be to subject them to abolition by the County Magistrates, whenever by default in the appointment of proper Officers, these Liberties (under whatever title) are found to elude or obstruct the due administration of Justice or of the Laws.

THE Enumeration of the entire Population may be deemed complete, no place being known finally to have omitted making due Return; but the technical arrangement of Parishes and places, absolutely indispensable as it is, requires an alphabetical Index, which is accordingly annexed to the Second Volume; a work of time and labour, that is, of expense; but its accuracy will not fail to be duly appreciated by those who have recourse to any of the Three Population Volumes of 1831.

A similar facility was in some measure accomplished in the Comparative Abstract of Population which appeared at the end of the Year 1831, the several places being therein arranged alphabetically in their respective Counties; and in the same Abstract is inserted the Annual Value of Real Property in each place, as assessed for the purpose of taxation in the Year 1815. In addition to this, the present Abstract attempts to give the AREA of every Parish in England; for which purpose those County Maps which profess to mark the limits of each Parish were sedulously corrected wherever error or defect was discoverable; not less than 3,000 Letters of local enquiry (inclosing explanatory Tracings) having been despatched for this purpose.* After correction thus obtained the Area of each Parish was computed by means of Glass plates marked in Squares of 40 Acres; and although reliance for any accurate purpose would be misplaced on the Result thus obtained, it may be deemed usually correct within one-tenth part, seldom erroneous beyond one-fifth part; thus placing in view (on every occasion of reference to the Enumeration Abstract) the density of Population in the particular Parish or District which may be then object of enquiry:—nor indeed, with with a view to consequences, can the Result which has been obtained be deemed useless, if it shall only serve to recommend more exact enquiry in proportion as topographical knowledge shall be applied to rural Statistics, especially as to the agricultural, pastoral, woodland or other descriptions of territory.

* The Boundaries of Borough-Towns as ascertained for the purposes of the Reform of Parliament Act, have afforded means (in many instances) of correcting former Maps as to Parish-boundaries: in some instances (on the contrary) they have created confusion or false inference: The Parishes adjacent to the Borough of Lewes are inaccurately stated from this cause.

The most striking results of a series of general Enumerations are those which place great Towns in comparison with each other, and each with itself, as to the Increase of Population. That of the Metropolis cannot readily be exhibited at one view, from the circumstance of its extending into two Counties, and it is placed first in the subjoined tabular arrangement.* Other large Cities and Towns are thus arranged; Next, after LONDON is placed EDINBURGH, as the capital of the ancient kingdom of Scotland—Towns flourishing in Manufacture are placed next; MANCHESTER, GLASGOW and PAISLEY, eminent in the Manufacture of Cotton;—BIRMINGHAM, which relies on the Hardware trade, that is, the conversion of Metals to useful purposes;—LEEDS eminent for Woollens,—NORWICH for Crapes,—and NOTTINGHAM for the Manufacture of Stockings.

After these are placed the Commercial Sea-Ports; LIVERPOOL, BRISTOL with its Suburbs (which like the Metropolis extend into another County); ABERDEEN, NEWCASTLE-UPON-TYNE with its Suburb of Gateshead (in the County of Durham); HULL, and the prosperous Town of DUNDEE:—The two great Naval Arsenals, PLYMOUTH and PORTSMOUTH, close this explanatory Catalogue of the following places; viz.—

* A particular description of the six portions into which the Metropolis is usually divided, appears in the Parish Register Abstract (pp. 497-500) illustrated by a Map. For the resident Population, distinguished accordingly, see pp. 1060-3 of the Enumeration Abstract, and pp. 493-6 of the Parish Register Abstract.

† The joint Towns of Manchester and Salford here appear as limited according to the Act 2 & 3 Geo. IV. c. 65; the entire Parish of Manchester contains 270,963 Persons. The Towns of Birmingham and Hull have been defined in like manner. Some of the other great Towns are newly limited in the same Act; but partly by new and rectilinear boundaries, and therefore not co-extensively with any limit recognized in the Enumeration of 1831.

In adverting to the Population of Towns, the number of Females is always found to exceed the number of Males; a fact easily explained by the employment of Females drawn thither from the rural districts as domestic Servants; Females born in a Town usually finding other occupation in it. In Liverpool and at other Ports the disparity becomes more remarkable, a considerable proportion of Males being excluded from the Enumeration of resident Inhabitants, as being Seamen who navigate Registered Shipping (a class of men amounting to 130,000) or migratory foreign Seamen: and as the Burials of Males at Seaport Towns equal or exceed the Burials of Females, it might not be unfair to estimate the actual Population at double the number of existing Females. The Sailors serving in the Royal Navy, and the Garrisons of Plymouth and Portsmouth (none of them enumerated with the resident Population) more forcibly illustrate this argument: so that the Population of Plymouth cannot be less than 85,000, nor of Portsmouth than 70,000; and that of Liverpool may be taken at 200,000, the enumerated females being 101,323.

The number of Registered Burials of Males in the Metropolis in Ten Years (1821-1830) was 160,000, of Females no more than 152,000; according to which proportion the Metropolis contains upwards of 1,600,000 persons;* that is, one Tenth should be added to the Enumerated Population; but as on all preceding occasions no more than one Twenty-fifth has been added on this account, the same proportion must be retained for the sake of conformity; and the comparative Population of The Metropolis is to be thus stated; in 1801, 900,000 persons; in 1811, 1,050,000 persons; in 1821, 1,274,800 persons; and in 1831, 1,530,000 persons.

Objections may undoubtedly be made to the propriety of the Limits of the Metropolis herein assumed; it therefore is convenient to add, that the total Population of all the Parishes whose Churches are situate within Eight Miles rectilinear distance from St. Paul's Cathedral (Woolwich excepted) amounted to 1,031,500 in 1801; to 1,220,200 in 1811; to 1,481,500 in 1821; and in 1831 to 1,776,500 (one Million and Three quarters); a Twenty-fifth part being always added (as above explained) for the great number of British Seamen belonging to the Shipping at anchor in the River Thames, for Soldiers at the Tower and in Westminster, and for the transitory Population always arriving and departing so irregularly as to prevent Enumeration of such Individuals in a City where no police regulations exist regarding Strangers and Sojourners.

The Population of PARIS in its extended sense, that is, the population of the Department of the Seine, is included in a District nearly circular of the same Diameter; but as the portion outside of such Circle around Paris is exceeded by the vacancy which appears elsewhere within that circle, the population of the Parish of Woolwich (although its Church is within the Eight Mile radius) is omitted in the London Estimate, to the amount of 17,661 persons: a Compensation exceeding the population of most of the Parishes which overstep the London Circle; viz. Barking (8,036) and Woodford (2,548) in Essex; Hendon (3,110) in Middlesex; and Mortlake (2,698) in Surrey.

The Population of the Department of the Seine amounted to 637,000 in the year 1816; to 742,000 in the year 1820; and to 1,013,000 in the year 1829.†

The choice of eight Miles as a Radius for including the Environs of London and of Paris, is also convenient as furnishing a Scale whereby all Nations acquainted with European Geography will be enabled to measure distances in and near these two Metropolitan Cities: For Eight Miles English are equal to Seven Geographical Miles as measured on the Meridian, and usually marked at the side edge of every Map; and this is very nearly true at London and Paris. The Area contained in an English Square Mile will therefore be as 49 to 64 in comparison with the area of a Geographical Mile, and this is so nearly as Three to Four, that for all practical purposes, that simple proportion may be safely used. Considering the value of this analogy, by which the English measure of Length and space becomes all but universal, it was judicious to leave the measure of length and consequently of Area undisturbed, when in the year 1824, the Antient Corn measure or Winchester Bushel of Henry III. was superseded and in some degree abrogated by Law. [5° Geo. IV. c. 74.]

* If 152,000 Burials result from an actual Population of 788,882 Females, 160,000 Burials of Males indicate a Population of 829,810 Males; in all, therefore, 1,608,690 Persons.

† See the Moniteur (partie officielle) 29 August 1818, 10 March 1819, 5 February 1829. But the first and second of these totals seem not to include resident foreigners, nor provincials accidentally in Paris, who by a Return from the Bureau de Longitudes (14 Dec. 1818), appear then to have amounted to 149,000 Persons. The Population of France was 28,216,254 in the year 1801; 32,560,934 in 1831.

II.

Parish Register Abstract.

THE Second object of the Population Act of 1801, was to arrive at an Estimate of the Increase or Diminution of the Population during the preceding Century, by means of the PARISH REGISTERS; to effect which object certain Questions were appointed to be answered by the officiating Minister of every Church and Chapel in England and Wales;—and the Population Acts of 1811, 1821, and 1831 repeat the same Questions, for the preceding Ten Years respectively; and Two additional Questions in 1831 aimed at ulterior objects.

QUESTIONS addressed to all OFFICIATING MINISTERS of Churches and Chapels in England and Wales.

- 1st. What was the Number of Baptisms and Burials in your Parish or Chapelry in the several Years 1821, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, and 30; distinguishing Males from Females?
- 2d. What has been the Number of Marriages in your Parish or Chapelry in the several Years 1821, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, and 30?
- 3rd. Be pleased to specify, on the Schedule annexed for that Purpose, the Ages of Individuals registered in your Burial Register in the several Years from 1813 to 1830, both inclusive?
- 4th. What Number of illegitimate Children may have been born in your Parish or Chapelry during the Year 1830, according to the best Information you possess or can obtain; and distinguishing Male and Female Children?
- 5th. Are there any Matters which you think it necessary to remark, in explanation of your Answers to either of the preceding Questions? Especially, whether any and what annual average Number of Births, Deaths, and Marriages may, in your opinion, have taken place in your Parish, without being noticed in the Parish Register?

The Third Question appeared to require a particular Formula for Entry of the Ages of Individuals buried in the several years 1813–1830, with explanations and a specimen, as follows:

THIRD QUESTION; EXPLANATIONS.

It is found by Experience that the best mode of entering and noting the Ages of Individuals (especially in populous Parishes) is by causing an Assistant to read the Christian name rather than to specify the Sex of each Individual, adding always the Age; and the Sex also, in case any such Name be doubtful in pronunciation, such as Francis or Frances.

Whenever the Burial Register does not specify the Name or Age of an Individual (as may occur in case of Strangers found dead, or other rare circumstance) the Clergyman is requested to enter the Burial at the foot of Column 2. and if the Sex is unknown, to enter the said Burial as of a Male. So in case of a Surname used as a Christian name, let the Individual be deemed a Male, if not remembered to be a Female.

All Burials since the Year 1812 being numbered in the Register, Subtraction of the Number of the first Burial of the Year from the Number next after the last Burial of the Year, will give the same result as the Summary of the Schedule of entered Burials; so that every Entry inserted in the Register between two others to preserve order of Date, or (on the contrary) every Entry purposely obliterated, or otherwise irregular, should be noted, and allowance made accordingly; otherwise the number of Burials may appear to be erroneous.

The Ages of Individuals known to have been buried, but not entered in the Parish Register, are not to be specified; but the numbers of such Individuals, Male and Female, are to be shewn next under the Defective Registry of Ages.

A Specimen of the manner of marking the Ages, and scoring them by Tens, is annexed, being a Schedule page-representing the Burials of a Parish containing 50,000 Persons. The Burials of Individuals upwards of 84 Years of Age being rare, no inconvenience will result from entry of them as they occur, without regard to priority of Entry according to Age.

The Clergy of England and Wales were enabled to answer the two first Questions [p. xxv.] by having recourse to the PARISH REGISTERS, which have been established in England ever since the Reformation; and the Third Question, by consulting the new form of Registry, as regulated by Law in the year 1812.

When, in the reign of Henry VIII., it was enacted, that the Church of England should no longer be subject to the Pope, Thomas Cromwell was appointed the King's Vicegerent for Ecclesiastical Jurisdiction; and in that capacity issued certain Injunctions to the Clergy in the year 1538.*

One of these Injunctions ordains, That every officiating Minister shall, for every Church, keep a Book, wherein he shall register every Marriage, Christening, and Burial; and the Injunction goes on to direct the manner and time of making the Entries in the Register-Book weekly; any neglect therein being made penal:—and in the first year of Edw. VI., (Anno 1547) all Episcopal authority was suspended for a time, while the ecclesiastical Visitors then appointed, went through the several Dioceses to enforce divers Injunctions, and among others that respecting Parish Registers. This Injunction was again repeated in the beginning of the reign of Elizabeth, who also appointed a Protestation to be made by the Clergy, in which, among other things, they promised to keep the Register-Book in a proper manner.

The Canons of the Church of England, which are now in force, date their authority from the beginning of the reign of James I., (Anno 1603). One of these prescribes very minutely in what manner Entries are to be made in the Parish Registers; herein reciting the Injunction of 1538, and ordering an attested Copy of the Register of each successive year to be annually transmitted to the Bishop of the Diocese or his Chancellor, and to be preserved in the said Bishop's Registry.

This Canon also contains a retrospective Clause, appointing that the ancient Registers, so far as they could be procured, but especially since the beginning of the reign of Elizabeth, should be copied into a Parchment Book, to be provided by every Parish. This wise regulation appears to have been carried into full effect at the time; so that the ancient Parish Registers now extant, usually commence with that Queen's Reign, and some of them earlier, quite as far back as the Date of the original Injunction. That part of the Canon which directs the Register-Book to be kept in a Coffer in the Church, has not been enforced, as it was found by experience that the Book was liable to be damaged by the moisture prevalent in uninhabited Buildings, and also to be purloined with the other contents of the Church Coffer. The Register-Book was heretofore usually kept in custody of the Officiating Minister, at his own House, if resident on the Benefice, otherwise in that of the Parish

* The alarm produced by this novelty, in a reign of innovation and severity, is curiously developed in a contemporary Letter from the Ancestor of the Earl of Mount Edgcumbe:

“Sir Piers Eggecomb to Cromwell.

“Plesse it, ywr goode Lordeshyp to be advertysyd, that the Kynggs Majesty hath commandyd me, at my beyng in hys gracios presens, that in casse I parceyvdy any grugge, or myscontentacyon amongge hys sojettes, I shulde ther off advertysse ywr Lonleshyp by my wrytynge. “To my Lorde Privy Seale ys goode Lordeshyp, be this gevyn.”

From Cromwell's Correspondence in the Chapter House (Bundle E.) The letter is wholly in Sir Pier's handwriting.

Cromwell's first Instructions to the Clergy after he became Vice-gerent, which were issued in 1536, did not require Parish Registers to be kept. They were first enjoined by the 12th Article of his Instructions of 1538, (printed at length by Burnet, in the Collection appended to the first volume of his History of the Reformation, p. 178), and as they were not issued, according to Strype, till the months of September and October, the date of this letter must have been in 1539. Mr. Burn's History of Parish Registers, published 1829, contains what is promised in its title; and much curious matter is contained in his History of Fleet Marriages, published 1833.

Parish Clerk; but the Act 52 Geo. III. c. 146, has made some alteration in this and other particulars.

This Law is intituled, "An Act for the better regulating and preserving Parish and other Registers of Births, Baptisms, Marriages and Burials in England," but does not appear to fulfil its intention as to Births. It received the Royal Assent on the 28th July 1812, and enacts that the Registers of Parishes, and of Chapelries (where the ceremonies of Baptism, Marriage and Burial are performed) shall be kept in Books of Parchment, or of good and durable paper, whereon shall be printed the Heads of Information required to be entered; also a printed number to be prefixed to each future entry, such entries to be divided by a printed line.

The King's Printer was charged to provide and transmit such Register Books as soon as conveniently might be after the passing of the Act, which was to take effect on the 1st January 1813: and with no small exertion on his part, the entire number of Register Books, upwards of 33,000, (three to each Parish and Chapelry) were printed, bound and transmitted before that time, although no preparation could be hazarded before the Act received the Royal Assent, as it was very likely to have been deferred to a future Session.

The provisions of this Act are not such (generally speaking) as were likely to affect the Returns of Registers under the Population Act of 1821, excepting only that a very distinct mention of the Registry of Baptisms, "whether Private or Public," has evidently added to the number of Registered Baptisms, (to an uncertain amount indeed) and in so far has been useful: but it thereby precludes any inference which otherwise might be drawn from a comparison of the respective numbers of Registered Baptisms which took place before and since the end of the year 1812.

The Act proceeds to direct, that the Register Books shall be kept in a dry well-painted iron chest, to be kept at the residence of the officiating Minister, or in the Parish Church or Chapel; also that Copies on Parchment of all Registers shall be sent annually to the Registrar of each Diocese; enforcing in this respect the before mentioned Canon, with particular directions as to the form and manner of transmissal, and subsequent arrangement of these Copies by the Registrar; but this last intention cannot be accomplished until proper Buildings or Receptacles in each Diocese, and a fund for payment of the persons employed in such arrangement, shall have been provided.

The Act extends to Cathedrals, and to Churches and Chapels of all sorts, though not Parochial; and this has somewhat augmented the number of Returns received under the Population Act, although it has added very little to the total of Burials or of Marriages brought to account.

An important part of the new Parish Register Act, was to enquire the Dates of all extant Parish-Register Books; but experience has shown that the Act was incompetent to the attainment of this desirable purpose. For remedy of such defect, the same Question was inserted in the Schedule circulated under the Population Act of 1831, as follows:

"Referring to Section XIX of the Parish Register Act of 1812 (inserted in the Register Book of Baptisms), Be pleased hereunder to insert, or to affix, a List of all the Register Books of Baptisms, Burials and Marriages (whether bound or otherwise) remaining in your Parish or Chapelry containing Entries anterior to the Year 1813; stating the periods at which the several Registers respectively commence and terminate; and the periods (if any) during which they are deficient?—If you retain Copy of such List transmitted to the Registrar of the Diocese in June 1813, a Transcript thereof would be satisfactory on the present occasion."

The Clergy (as might be expected) have readily availed themselves of this opportunity to comply with the directions of the Act, which therefore have now been fulfilled; and with this advantage, that the substance of their Answers is rendered accessible to the public as printed in a compressed form in the Parish-Register Abstract, and that a full Copy of their Answers is deposited in the British Museum with their Names severally inserted in the Margin; and where explanations were asked and obtained after perusal of such Answers, all such explanations to the number of 3,850 are annexed (in original) to the pages of the Manuscript Volumes in the British Museum [intituled, PARISH-REGISTERS EXTANT, 1831.] It may be thought that so many explanations indicate too severe a scrutiny, but the nature of the investigation involving obscure dates and ancient writing, is to be considered; and it is satisfactory to announce that in many instances Register-Books have been found and restored to their proper depository in consequence of these enquiries; which (it is not presumptuous to believe) will have a prospective influence favourable to the safe custody of Parish-

Parish-Registers in future. The preservation of Parish-Registers retrospectively is a question of degree; no person will be surprized that one-half of the Registers anterior to A. D. 1600 should have disappeared. If any other nation possesses similar Registers of that date, (a valuable proof of uninterrupted civilization), a comparison might be instituted, and the preservation of such Records through Three Hundred Years would not prove to have been of frequent occurrence; but in point of fact, examination shews that 812 English Parish-Registers commence in the year 1538, about 40 of which contain Entries (copied probably from family bibles and tomb-stones) anterior to the date of Cromwell's injunction; 1,822 Parish-Registers commence from A. D. 1538 to 1558, when Queen Elizabeth required a Protestation from the Clergy;—2,448 Parish-Registers commence from A. D. 1558 to 1603, when the Canons authorized by King James, directed a Copy of all extant Parish-Registers to be made and preserved; and nearly one half of them (5,082) have been preserved accordingly, and are now extant. Parish-Registers, to the number of 960, commence between that time to the year 1650;—2,757 from A. D. 1650 to 1700; —1,476 Parish-Registers from A. D. 1700 to the year 1750; the rest (Six or Seven Hundred) since that time. Absolute exemption from defective or erroneous entry in these Registers must not be expected, but it may fairly be doubted, whether such avowal of imperfection is not preferable to the official appearance of perfection which is offered to the enquirer in those nations where, by positive Law and severe Penalties, the acknowledgement of imperfection in civil Registers (as they are called) is effectually prohibited, and where no allowance can be made by the calculator for negligence, which yet may sometimes have existed. In the first case (as in England) the degree of omission and defect is open to investigation and discussion, and reasonable approximation is attainable, as will be seen in the following pages under the respective descriptions of Marriage, Burial, and Baptismal Registers.

On the whole this national record of Baptisms, Burials and Marriages is highly respectable, and well worthy of the labour which has been bestowed in affording particular information of its extent in every Parish; whereby the investigation of family kindred and connections, and all the purposes of such Registry, cannot but be considerably and usefully promoted.

THE Number of Returns of Parish Registers and Chapelry Registers received from England and Wales in the year 1801, (including a Supplementary Return) was supposed to be 11,065, which was not far from the number really due; but from the circumstances of a new enquiry, some of these were redundant, some were duplicate, and in many instances (on the contrary) no Return was made.

The discovery of a considerable degree of inaccuracy in the Supplement of 1801, arising from these causes, and a certain knowledge that the Parish Register Abstract of that year had necessarily been formed with a degree of expedition not permitting sufficient investigation, was a cogent reason for proceeding more cautiously on the next occasion; and this was the more necessary, as the Return of 1811 was to be compared with that of 1801, which standing alone, and being intended to indicate the Increase or Diminution of the Population during the last Century, was not much less effectual for its own particular purpose, although a considerable proportion of the Parish-Register Returns were not brought to account; the result of a comparison of the several years with each other, not being much affected by it. This consideration, though a sufficient excuse for attending to expedition rather than to the completion of the Returns of 1801, was no longer valid in 1811; and particular care was then taken accordingly, both by marking the name of every supposed Benefice and Chapelry on a set of County Maps, and checking the Returns by that criterion, as well as by all other authorities which could be obtained; this was a laborious task, and gave rise to above Two Thousand Applications to officiating Clergymen and others, and to a large correspondence, which however produced 857 additional Returns, and left no room to doubt but that sufficient knowledge was thus procured to insure a complete Return on any future occasion.

It is obviously needless at this time, to detail the process by which the Returns of 1801 and 1811 were connected for the purpose of comparison; on a balance of the redundant and the deficient, the number of Baptisms was deemed to be deficient as One in Thirty-two; of Burials as One in Twenty-nine; of Marriages as One in Fifty; and additions were made accordingly, to which it is sufficient to refer without repeating a page of figures and calculations, which was quite necessary in the Preliminary Observations of 1811. The corrected number of Baptisms, Burials, and Marriages, in the last Thirty years (1801-1830) is here subjoined, as not liable to suspicion of inaccuracy, such as was justly imputable to the original Return of 1801.

The Number of Returns of Parish Registers and Chapelry Registers collected under the Population Act of 1811 was 11,159; under the Act of 1821, the Number was increased to 11,342, from a cause which has been already stated, but which does not materially affect the comparison of the two Abstracts; and in the present the number is reduced to 11,301 by omission of Chapelry and other Registers, in which no Entries appear to have been made, or the Entries to have been copied into the Register of the Mother Church, and thence duly returned.

Further it may be proper to remark (and indeed has already been shown) that the Number of Benefices in England and Wales is by no means equal to the Number of Parishes; because because in many instances Two or more Parishes are permanently united as one Benefice; and in the Diocese of Norwich, which includes Norfolk and Suffolk, the Diocesan has the privilege of granting a personal Union of Parishes, on account of the small extent and value of many Benefices in those Counties.

The PARISH-REGISTER ABSTRACT has now as heretofore been framed with special Reference to the SUMMARY of each County and of each distinct part of every County, in the ENUMERATION ABSTRACT; so that every Total of Persons which there appears, may be compared with a corresponding Annual Total of Baptisms, Burials, and Marriages; and an Annual Average of these for each entire County, may be obtained by the easy process of dividing the Total (which appears under each County Summary) by Ten;—and to facilitate comparisons of the duration of human life, and of the proportion of Marriages in various Counties and at different periods, the Table inserted in the next page has been prepared; in consulting which it must not be forgotten that the comparative not the absolute Mortality, can only be relied on, unless the inquirer knows with what degree of accuracy the deaths which take place in any County or other limited district, are recorded in the Parish Registers.

For in some few places Dissenters from the Established Church and persons inattentive to religious rites are so numerous, that the Marriage Register only is worthy of reliance. In Wentlloog Hundred, Monmouthshire, where a mixed confluence of workmen drawn together by the prosperity of the Iron-works has increased the Population from 8,700 to 29,000 since the year 1801,—the Baptisms and Burials respectively do not always out-number the Marriages, although Four Births to a Marriage is a very moderate calculation, and the mortality cannot be very different from that of the adjoining English Counties. The Registers of the adjoining County of Glamorgan are defective from the same cause; and it must be remembered, that the Counties of Wales were not well defined nor regularly united to England till about the time of the first Injunction for keeping Parish Registers [See p. 834 of the Enumeration Abstract], and the difference of language has not been without its effect of estrangement in ecclesiastical affairs, especially in the Parish Registers, which are, generally speaking, defective, and therefore are not noticed in the following Table; which differs from the similar statement printed in the Observations preliminary to the Comparative Abstract of 1831, and from that which appears in the Maps now inserted in the Parish-Register Abstract,—inasmuch as the number of unregistered Baptisms and Burials (supplied by the Clergy in pursuance of the Fourth Question of the Schedule) has since that time been ascertained and included in the calculation.

Par. Reg.
Abstract,
p. 200.

But suppose the Parish Registers of England were nearly as accurate and complete as the Civil Registers of Births, Deaths and Marriages are presumed to be in some other nations, the indication of comparative Mortality thus obtained would be greatly over-rated, were it deemed exact in all cases.

It has been heretofore suggested, “That the Increase of Population by increasing the proportion of youth, may lessen the per Centage of Mortality on the entire Population; and to what extent this effect may be so produced is not yet known by experience,—observation and enquiry concerning such facts being of recent date. If the Population of England should become stationary, the former Ratio of mortality might possibly recur.” This suggestion may be generalized by observing, that human society is composed of individuals of every grade of age, which grades are liable to mortality, to a greater or less chance of death in the several years of progress from Infancy to old age. Now the number of existing individuals in each grade must depend on the Population existing at the time they were born. Suppose (for example) the Population of Lancashire to have doubled itself (as the fact is) within the last Thirty Years, it follows that infants, two to one, were born there in the Year 1831 as compared to the Year 1801; in other words, that such infants now compose a double proportion of the Population in comparison with the class Thirty Years old, than if the said Population had been stationary since 1801.

Evidence before the Committee on the Population Bill,
18 May 1830.

The same sort of irregular proportion must prevail throughout all the grades of life, the comparative number in each grade relying on the rate of increase of Population since each came into existence, from the infant to the most aged individual: and as infancy and old age are much more liable to death than youth and middle-age, the result on such a Table as here follows, cannot be predicated without more knowledge of facts and more accuracy of inference than have hitherto been attainable.

CORRECTED TABLE of the ANNUAL PROPORTION of BAPTISMS, BURIALS and MARRIAGES, to the POPULATION of England; calculated upon an Average of the TOTALS of such BAPTISMS, BURIALS and MARRIAGES, in the Five Years preceding the several Enumerations of 1801, 1811, 1821, and 1831; and distinguishing the several Counties.

This Table also differs from preceding Calculations, in adverting to the Burials of the last Five Years of each period, viz. 1796-1800; 1806-1810; 1826-1830; not only for the sake of comparing the number of Burials more nearly with the Population ascertained at the end of such quinquennial periods, but because variation is more strikingly exhibited by such intervening omissions.

The Comparative duration of average life in each County at these periods is exhibited in the foregoing Table; and as regarding parts of each County, a further enquiry has been instituted, Parish Register Limits of convenient dimensions having been formed for this purpose by the junction of Hundreds or similar Divisions. But the Results would be too vast, indeed would present to the enquirer but a Labyrinth of numbers and proportions; if printed on consecutive pages of the Parish-Register Abstract,—wherefore Maps which speak to the eye have been chosen as the vehicle of this kind of information in detail; and perhaps it will be thought that the art of Lithography has seldom been more successfully employed. These Maps undertake to show, what was the Population of each County and of each Parish Register Limit in 1801, 1811, 1821, and 1831; and the proportion of Registered Baptisms, Burials, and Marriages to that Population in every instance. A further description of these Maps in words would not tend to elucidation; the facility of comparison afforded by them cannot be misunderstood. The Scale is uniform, (about nine Miles to an Inch,) and such that more Counties than one are contained in each Map, the number of Maps being Sixteen, besides a General Map of England and Wales, also inserted in the Parish-Register Abstract. [pp. 491-2.]

Every place which has made Return of a Register, is distinguished in the Parish-Register Abstract, as Rectory (R.) Vicarage (V.) Parochial Chapelry (P. C.) Chapelry or Curacy (C.)

As the Marriage Register may be deemed nearly correct; next to it, the Register of Burials; and lastly, the Register of Baptisms, it will be found most convenient to treat of each distinctly, and in that order.

CONCERNING THE REGISTRY OF MARRIAGES.

MANY Inconveniences having arisen from the undue Solemnization and Registry of Marriages, an Act was passed [26<sup>o</sup> Geo. II.], which came into operation 25th March 1754, “for the better preventing of Clandestine Marriages,”—directing a certain Formula for the Registry of Marriages, to be attested and signed by the Minister officiating, the individuals married, and two or more Witnesses, and declaring any Erasure or Mutilation of the Marriage Register, or any False Entry therein, to be Felony without Benefit of Clergy; nor can a Marriage be legally solemnized in any Chapel consecrated since this Law was made. A retrospective Relaxation of the Act in this particular took place in 1781, under an Act by which Marriages already solemnized in such Chapels, were declared to be valid; but the Registers of such Marriages were ordered to be forthwith removed to the Parish Church.

Some Persons are known to evade the provisions of the Marriage Act, by a Marriage in Scotland; and this practice perceptibly lessens the number of Registered Marriages in the Border Counties;* but the Registry of Marriages in other parts of England is not much affected thereby, because the Parents or friends of the Females who have been thus irregularly married at Graitney (Gretna) Green (about 63 annually) usually cause such Marriages to be afterwards solemnized according to the Law of England.

The Marriages of Dissenters of every denomination take place in the Established Church; excepting those of the Society of Friends, usually called Quakers, who are permitted to intermarry in their own Congregation; and to this exception may be added the Jews, who marry according to their own peculiar Ceremonial; and the number of the first of these religious Sects rather exceeds 20,000 persons, the number of Jews is about 25,000; both these sects producing a defect of about 350 Registered Marriages annually; but this does not affect the comparative number of Marriages in a series of years.

A great variation in the annual Number of Marriages is caused by the circumstances of the times, and especially by the price of provisions; the difference arising from this cause is such, that no safe inference concerning the Increase or Diminution of Population can be

be drawn from the comparison of any single Years with each other: But the average Amount of the Marriages for five years together, or for a longer period is the best evidence on the subject, because the Register of Marriages may be deemed perfectly correct.

As it is intended, throughout the present Observations, to give the most important Results of all the Decennial Population Acts, the following TABLE not only shows the Number of Marriages in each Year since 1754, but also the average Amount of Marriages for every Five, and for every Ten Years since the Marriage Act has been fully in force. It will appear in the sequel of these Remarks, that Results drawn from this Table would be very similar to the Results drawn from the Registered Baptisms.

| For the Marriages in each Year, 1801—1830,see p. xxx.          |            |       |            |       |            |           |     |                                     |                                    |

The Annual proportion of Marriages to the Population during the last Five Years preceding 1831, was as one to 128 in England, the several Counties ranging from one in 103 to one in 175; [See p. xxxii.] the extremes take place in Middlesex and in Hertfordshire, the custom of surreptitiously marrying in the Metropolis increasing the number of Marriages therein, at the expense of the adjacent Counties.

CONCERNING THE REGISTRY OF BURIALS.

- THE Registry of Burials may be supposed to be deficient, on the following considerations
1. Many Congregations of Dissenters, inhabiting Towns, have their own peculiar Burying-grounds; as have the Jews, and the Roman Catholics, who reside in London, and in some other places.
  2. Some Persons, from motives of poverty or convenience, inter their Dead without any religious ceremony. But in estimating the deficiency from this cause, it should be considered that a place must be very populous before the establishment of cheap Burial-grounds can become become a profitable speculation. Such there are in the Metropolis, at Manchester, and in Newcastle-upon-Tyne. The Number of these Interments within the London Bills of Mortality has been estimated at 7,000 annually; at the other places here mentioned a Register or Account is kept, of which a Return was received, and entered; as indeed of some of the Burial-grounds in and near the Metropolis.

3. Children who die before Baptism are interred without any religious ceremony, and consequently are not registered.

4. Negligence may be supposed to cause some omissions in the Registers, especially in those of small Benefices, where the Officiating Minister is not resident.

5. Many Persons employed in the Army, and in Navigation, die Abroad; and consequently their Burials remain unregistered.

The Annual Number of Burials, as collected in pursuance of the Population Acts, authorizes a satisfactory inference of diminished Mortality in England; the average Number of Burials not differing materially from the Year 1780 to the Year 1815; the first Five Years of that period, the last Five Years, and the whole period of Thirty-six years, giving the same average result of 193,000 Registered Burials, the Population having increased 3,300,000 in the mean time; not but that the effect of the Dearth by which England was afflicted in 1795 and 1800, is very perceptible in the increased Mortality of those years. Many other, and no doubt very various considerations would occur to every Investigator of such a subject; especially the doubt as to how many years of the Burial Register ought to be applied as a Divisor to existing Population. The Mortality of the Inhabitants of England appears to have sunk to its Minimum in the decade preceding the Population Abstract of 1821; and since that time it seems to have risen as fast as it descended after the year 1800. See p. liii.

The causes of increase in the duration of human life up to the Year 1821, remain to be investigated by those who are able to elucidate the subject;—houses less crowded, better food, better clothing, and more cleanliness among the numerous classes of Society, cannot have been without some effect; and to these may be added the increased extent of surface drainage, and of underground drainage, both which may have acted beneficially on the health of the Agricultural Population. The improved treatment of Diseases was stated in some of the Returns, as a cause of increasing Population, and especially the substitution of Vaccination for the Small Pox;—infectious Fevers have almost disappeared, even in the Metropolis; and Intermittents, which heretofore under the name of Ague, infested the Country very extensively (especially the Fen Districts) are no longer spoken of. So in former times, the Plague (as it was called) disappeared as soon as the City of London had been rebuilt after the great Fire of 1666; so the Land-Scurvy, and before that the Leprosy, became gradually extinct when the Reformation of Religion, and improvements in Agriculture, had removed the necessity of eating Salt-fish and Salted Meat during the greater portion of the year. See p. xlv.

The Registered Mortality in the several Counties of England (1826–1830) ranges between one in 41, and one in 64; Middlesex and Cornwall being the extremes. The Registry of Monmouthshire cannot be relied on in this comparison of Counties. Including unregistered Deaths, the Mortality of England and Wales is estimated at one in Forty-nine since the year 1820. [See p. xlv.] But supposing, for the sake of argument, that One-sixth may be justly added to the Average of the Registered Burials (1820–1830), and assuming the Medium Population at 12,938,030, then  $[246,290 + 41,048 = 287,338] 12,938,030 (45)$  the proportion of deaths has been One in Forty-five of the Population. Add (in like manner) One-sixth to the Registered Burials of 1780, or rather (as above explained) to 193,000, then  $[193,000 + 32,166 = 225,166] 7,814,827 (34)$  the proportion of deaths was in 1780 as one in Thirty-four or Thirty-five of the Population. A proportion as unlikely in amount beyond the Mortality of other European nations in the same climate, as one in Forty-nine during the last ten years falls short of that mortality. The question is thus laid open for discussion; for it must be confessed, that the defective Registry of Burials in Monmouthshire and in Wales, and in very large towns, cannot be subjected to satisfactory estimate, so that resort must be had to argumentative inference.

The present Return of the Number of Registered Burials produces no unusual information; but the Third Question, requiring the Ages of Individuals entered in the Burial Registers, during the Eighteen years preceding 1831, has produced a Total of nearly Four Millions of persons deceased, not unequally divided between the two sexes, and forming one of the elements requisite in calculating the expectancy of human life.

It was impossible to arrange the following Table without remarking the excess of Mortality which falls upon the Decenary years, especially on 60 and 70, where the Burials are recorded to nearly double in amount, as compared to the preceding year and to the succeeding year. Hence the tendency to speak in round numbers may be estimated with considerable exactness, one person in Four or Five who dies at 59 and 61, at 69 and 71 years of age, being thereby transferred to 60 and 70; so that in computation it is necessary to combine the years which exhibit palpable irregularity from this cause.

Another element requisite for calculating the expectancy of life, is a knowledge of the Ages of those living concurrently with the deceased; an extensive inquiry which cannot be repeated

Eighteen

Eighteen years consecutively, and in this instance is supplied by an approximation arising from the Enumeration of 1821, when the Ages of Ten Millions and a half of persons in England and Wales were ascertained with a view to the present occasion, and are here inserted.

AGES of PERSONS enumerated in England and Wales, 28th May 1821; with proportions annexed, supposing each Sex and the Total to have been 10,000,000 in number.

The question addressed to the several Overseers in the year 1821, regarding the Ages of persons, was as follows: "If you are of opinion that in making the preceding Enquiries (as to the number of Families and of persons) the Ages of the several individuals can be obtained in a manner satisfactory to yourself, and not inconvenient to the parties, Be pleased to state,—The Number of those who are under Five Years of Age,—of those between 5 and 10 Years of Age,—&c. &c." It will be perceived that an option was thus left to the Overseer, whether or not to inquire and make Return of the Ages of persons; and to every individual person, whether or not to be included in the Return: For a Statement of Ages is not much less valuable as extending to 10,530,671 persons, than if it extended one Ninth part further, to 11,978,875 persons (the entire Population of England and Wales); and it is much more valuable, as being voluntary in all the parties concerned, thereby excluding defects and inaccuracy to which such a Statement would otherwise be liable from carelessness or repugnance.

The 28th day of May is so nearly in the middle of the year, that no over-scrupulous objection is likely to occur as to any combination of the Ages of the Living and the Ages of the Buried in the Year 1821; still less to the Three, Five, or Seven Years respectively, of which 1821 is the middle year. A period of Seven Years was therefore chosen, as affording scope enough for insuring a fair average of Mortality, and not departing too far from the time when the Ages of the Living were ascertained.

AGES of 1,497,511 PERSONS BURIED in ENGLAND and WALES, (of whom 756,163 MALES, 741,348 FEMALES), during SEVEN YEARS (1818-1824), of which the AVERAGE only appears elsewhere.

Afterwards it was suggested, that other and valuable sources of knowledge might be expected to accrue from a distinct Statement of Mortality in every other year of the series, as exhibiting the comparative decrement of the two sexes, and at various ages throughout life; wherefore a laborious operation to that effect has been undertaken and accomplished,—in honour also (so to speak) of the ample materials collected in detail by the willing labour of the Clergy, and afterwards classed and methodized at the public expense. The following extensive Table therefore shows the average of Seven Years 1818–1824, the particulars of Eleven Years (1813–1817, and 1825–1830), and the Average of all the Eighteen Years; which Average, except for the sake of comparison in every column and every year, will never be used in preference to the foregoing general Table [p. xxxvi] of the Ages of 3,938,496 Persons buried during Eighteen Years. If any calculator should prefer the mortality of Seventeen Years instead of Eighteen Years, as placing the enumerated Ages of the Living more accurately in the middle of the period, he will have to deduct the Burials of 1830 as a preliminary to his further labour.

The only remaining element requisite for accurate calculation of the expectancy of Life, is the Amount of Population retrospectively during the life of Man; which will appear under its proper head. The details of the Burial Register will best be concluded, by remarking, that among 3,988,496 persons, 1,900 have attained to the age of One Hundred Years, of whom no more than one-third (637) were Males, two-thirds (1,263) Females. Eighteen Individuals have attained to the age of One Hundred and Eleven and upwards, Nine of each Sex; and it may gratify local curiosity to add, That those of 111 years of age, died at Maker (North-Riding of Yorkshire), at Cloford (Somersetshire), at Dent (in the West-Riding of Yorkshire), at Tanworth (Warwickshire), and at Houghton-le-Spring (Durham), in the years 1814, 1815, 1817, 1822 and 1826 respectively. Those who were 112 years of age died at Llangattock (Brecon), and at Tytherington (Gloucestershire), in the years 1817 and 1825 respectively. Those of 113 years of age died at Shadwell (Middlesex) and at Standon (Herts), in the years 1814 and 1819 respectively. Those of 114 years of age died at Langford (Bedfordshire), and in St. Martin's Parish (Birmingham), in the year 1823. A Female, 117 years of age, died at Sutton-Courteney (Berks), in 1822. A Male, 118 years of age, died at Irthington (Cumberland), in 1823. A Male, 119 years of age, died at Allensmore (Herefordshire), in 1822. Two Males, of 120 years of age, died at St. John's (Swansea), and at Topsham (Devon), in the years 1822 and 1824 respectively; one Female, of 120, at Camrose (Pembrokeshire), in 1830. One Male, 124 years of age, died at Boughton-under-Blean (Kent), in the year 1824.

Nineteen Hundred Centenarians (persons who have attained to One hundred years and upwards) appearing to have died in Eighteen years [1813-1830], produces an annual average of 105 such deaths, and is in the proportion of one death in 2,073 other deaths. The Centenarians existing in the year 1821 in England and Wales were 189, or one in 55,717; and supposing the defect in the Burial Register of Ages, and in the Enumeration of Ages in 1821 to have been equal (which is not far from the fact), 105 Centenarians in 189 (or 55 per cent.) thus appear to have died annually.

Further; as the Population of England doubled itself between the years 1730 and 1821, and for all practical purposes may be taken as stationary from 1700 to 1730, the Centenarians now in existence are no more than Half, as compared to those who would have now been in existence had the Population of 1730 been the same as it is now; in other words, they would have been as one in 28,000, instead of one in 56,000 [55,717], the proportion ascertained by the Enumeration of 1821. Apart from such considerations, the proportion of existing Centenarians is no valid indication of national health or longevity.

CONCERNING THE REGISTRY OF BAPTISMS.

THE Registry of Baptisms is deficient from the same causes as that of Burials, and from most of those causes in a greater degree.

1. Many Dissenters of every denomination (those especially who reside at a distance from any other Burial-place) from motives of decency or convenience bury their dead in the Cemeteries of the Established Church, though they baptize after their own manner, or not at all.
2. Some irreligious Persons, especially in large Towns, neglect the Rite of Baptism altogether.
3. Some Children die immediately after Birth, unbaptized; these however not being registered among the Burials, the Comparison is not affected from this cause. A great defect in Baptismal Registers heretofore arose from Private Baptism, which is carried to an extent not at all in the contemplation of the Founders of the Church of England; for the Canon ordaining Registers applies to Christenings, without further explanation; and this word is usually understood to mean Publick Baptism only. The practice of the Clergy has not been uniform on this point; and it appears from the Remarks subjoined to some of the Parish-Register Returns of 1811, that the Registry of Private Baptisms was refused in many places, from a conscientious desire thereby to induce persons to cause their Children to be publicly received into the Congregation: but the Parish Register Act of 1812 no longer leaves this optional, and the effect of it has been such, that Registered Baptisms, which heretofore were 147 to 100 as compared to the Burials, are increased since the year 1811, so as to exceed the Burials in the proportion of 157 to 100.
4. Negligence may be supposed to cause the same proportion of omissions in the Registry of Baptisms as in that of Burials.

The joint effect of all these causes will hereinafter be estimated in discussing the Increase of Population.

The whole Number of Baptisms collected for the purposes of the Four Population Acts, appears to be 16,323,576: of these, 8,335,866 Males; 7,987,710 Females: So that the Baptisms of Males are 10,435 to 10,000 Females.—The whole Number of Burials appears to be 11,588,938 : of these, 5,819,923 Males, 5,769,015 Females; a very small disparity in so large a number; whence it may be inferred, that the larger proportion of Males born ( $4\frac{1}{2}$  per cent.) is also the proportion dying Abroad in the employments of War and Commerce: not forgetting, that of unregistered infants a larger portion are Males than Females. Previously to the year 1821, the Burials of the two Sexes were in equal number, and the effect of settled peace is now shown by the increased proportion of Males who die and are buried at home.

The proportion of Registered Baptisms to the Population is as one to 34 in England; the several Counties ranging between one in 31, and one in 38; Cambridgeshire, with Middlesex, Notts, and Worcester being equally of the first class; Surrey the other extreme, Monmouthshire always excepted. Including unregistered Births, the proportion of Births to the Population of England and Wales has been one in 28, since the Year 1820. [See p. xlv]: but this is liable to the same sort of question as the proportion of Deaths, relying indeed upon the same argument, [See p. xxxv.]

The Number and Sex of illegitimate children born in the Year 1830 formed part of the enquiry of 1831, and the Laws regarding the maintenance of the Poor, added to the facility of collecting facts which occurred in the preceding Twelvemonth, tend very much to establish the accuracy of the Return. The total number in England and Wales was 20,039; of whom, Males 10,147, Females 9,892; the proportion as one in Nineteen Baptisms [Par. Reg. Abstract, p. 490] the Males not exceeding the Females much more than  $2\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. In Middlesex (the Metropolis County) the proportion of Illegimates is no more than one in Thirty-eight Baptisms. This may be deemed remarkable, considering the opposite result in other European nations, in more than one of which the Capital City is said to produce Illegimates as one Birth in Three or Four, although elsewhere in the same nations such Births do not exceed one-tenth. But the cause of this seeming disparity exists in applying the word Illegitimate to all who are deposited in Hospitals for the reception of deserted Children; that is, to all infants whose parents are too poor to maintain them. This grievous necessity is obviated in England by the Poor Relief Law, and the general opulence as well as the density of population in the Metropolis, facilitates the concealment of illegitimate birth. The so-called Foundling Hospital in London has long since [A. D. 1760] ceased to be such in reality.

III.

Increase of Population.

THE successful Enquiry regarding the Ages of persons existing in the Year 1821, and the Collection of Ages of the deceased during Eighteen Years to the end of the Year 1830,—have conjointly rendered important a knowledge of the amount of Population existing throughout the last one hundred years; that is, during the most extended period of human life; because all the Three elements requisite for calculating the expectancy of human life will then be complete.

Four Enumerations, at the beginning, at the end, and at two intermediate periods, dividing Thirty Years into three equal parts, affords sufficient assurance of accuracy since the commencement of the present Century, the gradual increase in all the intermediate Years being supplied in England and Wales by the excess of Baptisms beyond Burials, with such proportional augmentation in each Year, as to reach the next stage of actual Enumeration, [See p. 489 of the Parish Register Abstract.] The total increase is between 56 and 57 per cent. in the first Thirty Years of the present Century.

The Marriage Register (already described) affords a large step of 45 Years retrospectively into the last Century, and with sufficient security, supposing only that the Marriages were in like proportion to the Population of the successive Years, as they have been since the Year 1800; that is, as one to 122 annually; but it is to be understood, that the number of Marriages, retrospectively from 1800, is to be increased from a cause now to be explained. The number of Marriages in the several Years between 1754 and 1801 (See p. xxxiii.) would be accurate throughout, were those of 1755 (and subsequently) collected from the same number of Parish-Registers as those of 1800; but an investigation of the Dates at which all Marriages-Registers commence (heretofore impossible) shows a defect to the amount of 250 such Registers in 1755; and the question arises, How many Marriages would these Registers (if extant) have produced in the Year 1755? This can only be decided by supposing the increase of Population between 1754 and 1801, to have been similar in these places to that of the rest of the kingdom, whereby it is not difficult to add to the Marriages of 1755 in proportion to the defect of Population thus estimated. The same process applied to each of the Years from 1755 to 1801, of course exhibits a decreasing series of additions, which entirely cease at the Year 1799.

It is also known by experience, indeed by inspection of the amount of Marriages in any series of Years, that it is so much affected by the price of food, as to require equalization or rectification of the series before it can be confidently applied in calculation; it is even found that the Births decrease and the Burials increase in a Year of scarcity, so that a Table of the prices of Wheat is a necessary appendage of any investigation into the Increase of Population on the authority of the Parish Registers; and none is so unexceptionable as the prices in the Windsor Market, which are carefully noted twice in every Year, for regulation of the Corn-Rents due to Eton College; which prices have been communicated with great readiness by the Registrar Mr. Batcheldor, as permitted and authorized by the Provost; and although they commence at a much earlier date than is necessary for the present purpose, are inserted entire [p. li.], as being the best standard record of the comparative prices of human food in the interior of England during a long series of years.

Previously to the year 1755, Marriages were so irregularly contracted, and the Registry therefore so notoriously defective, as not to be deemed worthy of attention in the Population Act of 1801, which in preference required the number of Baptisms and Burials from the year 1700 to 1760; so that the proportion of Baptisms and of Births to Marriages remains to be investigated; for which purpose the number of Deaths is a necessary ingredient; and herein it is to be considered that if the emigration of persons from Great Britain may in some degree arrest the progress of Population, the immigration from Ireland into Great Britain operates in compensation; and neglecting these disturbing causes as thus neutralized, the Increase of Population accrues from the excess of Births beyond the Deaths. This Increase between the Enumerations of 1821 and 1831 appears to have been 1,978,312. The Registered Baptisms during these Ten Years have been 3,753,493; the Registered Burials, 2,462,907; to which last may be added 94,890 for unregistered Burials (9,489 Annually), according to the Estimate of the several Clergymen; and about 100,000 may be assumed (10,000 Annually), of which no particular Estimate was obtained. The Total of Deaths in England and Wales will thus amount to 2,657,797; and to balance these Deaths, and provide for the above increase of Population, the Births must have been 4,636,672, showing a defect in the Baptismal Register of 883,179; in fact, that an addition of 24 per cent. is necessary to reconcile it to the Births and to the increase of Population. In this manner the Births appear to have been as 441 to 100 Marriages; the Baptisms as 346 to 100 Marriages, which is rather less than the usual proportion since 1780, (352 to 100) the contemporary Marriages and Baptisms having been ascertained, and the numbers compared; and no better approximation to the Population of the Decennary Years of the first Half of the last Century can be obtained than by reliance on this proportion as applied to the Registered Baptisms and Burials of each Decennary Year. It is fortunate that the expectancy of human Life at all ages younger than 75 will not be liable to error on account of this imperfect basis of calculation; which when pursued into detail seems to indicate that the Eastern Counties from the Humber to the Thames, including the East-Riding of York, Lincoln, Cambridge, Norfolk, Suffolk, and Essex, scarcely maintained a stationary Population during that Half Century.

The best Statement which can be given of the progressive Population of England and Wales is here subjoined, on the authority of Mr. Finlaison, of the National Debt Office, who is engaged in a sedulous investigation of the expectancy of human life, from infancy to old age, founded on the materials herein explained, after subjecting them to all the tests furnished by the present state of Physical and Statistical knowledge.

At the end of each County in the Parish-Register Abstract, is a classification of the ages of the deceased, for the purpose of ready comparison of the several Counties with each other; but from the Increase of Population the decimal annexed thereto is of little use beyond the earliest Years of Life. According to this classification, the probability of life in England (vie probable) is 25 Years at birth; but in the North-Riding of the County of York one-half are not dead until the age of 38 Years, whereas in the West-Riding of the same County, one-half are dead at 18 Years of age.—An incredible disparity in adjoining districts, were it not known that the Population of the North-Riding increases slowly, that of the West-Riding rapidly; whence the young are in greater proportion in the latter, and the Mortality of Infants, especially of the Male Sex in the first two years of life, produces this preponderance of early death in the West-Riding. This cause is so powerful, that in Lancashire (where the Population increases even more rapidly) one-half of the individuals born have not attained the age of 12 Years; one-half of the Males being dead at 7 Years, one-half of the Females between 16 or 17 Years of age; such indeed on infant life is the effect of crowded residence in the immediate vicinity of the several factories, that in Lancashire 36 per cent. of Male Infants, 31 per cent. of Female Infants die before they are two years old. A rapid increase of Population infers the birth and existence of a large proportion of Infants, and therefore a large proportion of short-lived persons; thereby accelerating pro ratâ the time of life or age at which one-half of the population collectively are dead.

In like manner the average duration of life, as deduced from a summation of the ages of the deceased (vie moyenne) produces only erroneous inference, unless the Increase or Decrease of Population, which predominates over all other causes, is first taken into account. Thus, by computation of the number of Years of Life of all the 3,938,486 Persons whose ages have been classed [p. xxxvi] the average duration of their lives is found to have been about 33 Years (of Male life 32 Years, of Female life 34 Years); and by pursuing the same process as combined with the rate of increase of Population in the several Counties, the alliance of cause and effect will appear to be quite as regular as is consistent with the other elements of calculation which must also be admitted into this investigation [see p. liv.] For the actual longevity of the human species cannot be very different in the three several Ridings of Yorkshire and in Lancashire; all in the same climate, and adjoining each other; all the inhabitants fed and clothed alike; yet the average duration of life (vie moyenne) according to the usual mode of calculation, differs as 25 to 40 years between Lancashire and North-York; West-York (nearly allied with Lancashire) giving 29 Years; East-York 32 Years. It may even be inferred, that where the Population has been stationary, human Life will seem to average at 44 years; and where it has been decreasing, it may stand yet higher in the Scale. Thus the reservation usual in all such cases, "Provided the Population is stationary," invalidates all calculations for ascertaining the average duration of human Life in various places. But inversely, may not the Movement of Population (the rate of its increase or decrease) retrospectively, be inferred from the average duration of the ages of the deceased, collected from modern Registers which afford that element of calculation?

The last Question of the Enumeration Schedule regards the Movement of Population, inquiring the cause of any remarkable increase or decrease, where any such may have occurred? Answers to this Question have not been numerous, and are always inserted in the Notes where any remarkable increase has taken place; instances of decreased Population are few, and are almost always noticed and explained.

The Remarks which state the Increase of Population to have resulted from the operation of the Poor Laws, are too frequent for distinct insertion; they suppose persons to marry with a direct view of thereby obtaining a weekly allowance, or at least in reliance on that kind of resource in time of need; nor can it be denied, but that such an effect seems very naturally to follow from the compulsory nature of the Relief afforded to the Poor in England; and it is quite certain, that whenever employment is scarce, the married man will have a preference, lest he should be constrained to apply to the Overseer for gratuitous aid: but there is reason to suspect that the Poor Laws are less conducive to an Increase of Population than they are usually stated to be in argument, and in the remarks inserted in the Population Returns; because the ratio of increase in Scotland does not materially differ from that in England and Wales; not more than would be expected did no Poor-Rate exist.

Yet the Poor-Rate with other local taxes in England, absorbs one-fifth of the entire rental of land and houses and other fixed property; while in Scotland the Poor-Rate is small in amount, indeed is rarely imposed; and this although the Poor-Laws are similar, (though not the same) in both Countries; the difference of burthen resulting from what at first sight appears a small difference in the Law: the English Poor-Rate being levied entirely on the Tenant,—the Scottish Poor-Rate being payable, one half of it, by the Proprietor; who having thus always felt a cogent interest in averting an immediate inconvenience, has therefore prevented the introduction of Poor-Rates by foresight and timely attention; while the English Proprietor not exposed to such immediate inconvenience, has suffered his benevolence to overpower his prudence, and has thereby imposed on his posterity a burthen which would not have existed had he been liable to sustain it himself at the time of his own liberality; a burthen which probably cannot be alleviated unless by imitation of this part of the Law of Scotland in the present exigency and pressure of the Poor-Rate; by which all private property in the Counties near the Metropolis is seriously endangered, the final transfer or extinction of Real Property being enforced by the confiscation of Personal Property, to the extent authorized by the absolute and unlimited operation of the Poor-Laws.

A class of Remarks more frequent in Scotland than in England, goes some length in accounting for the Increase of the Agricultural Population; not immediately from the prosperity of Agriculture during the first Twelve or Thirteen years of the present Century, but consequently, from the disuse of Farm-house Servants (Male Servants especially) when the Master began to live in a very superior manner to his domestics, and the Mistress to dislike the trouble of providing for them. The dismissed Labourer in such cases could not but become a Cottager, and in his new situation could scarcely fail to become a Married Man.

The Manufacturing Population is invariably on the Increase; not only as every short period of prosperity and increased wages produces imprudent Marriages, but also because in many Manufactures, Children are able to maintain themselves at an early age, and so to impose little expense on their Parents, to the obvious encouragement of marriage.

But this is not a proper place for going deeply into the causes of increasing Population; which may be deemed a solid good, or a dreadful evil, according to the circumstances of the nation in which it occurs. If a commensurate increase of Food and of Raiment can be produced by Agriculture and by Machinery, an accession of Consumers in the home market cannot but be beneficial to all parties; and the Increase of Population in such case may be deemed equally desirable in itself, and conducive to National strength and National prosperity.

The concluding pages of this Preface exhibit a Comparative view of the Population of the several Counties in 1801, 1811, 1821 and 1831; with an opposite page of miscellaneous information: the Area of each County; the Divisional Meetings of Magistrates in Petty Sessions [See p. 1.];—the number of Acting Justices of the Peace, or County Magistrates, (from a Parliamentary Document;) the number of Parishes;—of Enumeration Returns (which vary in number at the discretion of the Overseers, in joining or separating parts of the same Parish);—and of Parish Register Returns. Much of this is not applicable to the Counties of Scotland.

The Population of Ireland (amounting to 7,767,401) has been enumerated concurrently with that of Great Britain, and through the meritorious exertions of Mr. Hatchell has been completed and arranged in the same manner, the inquiries having been similar throughout. The Population of France was also enumerated in 1831, but without distinction of Sexes, or any other particulars. In all Nations where Registers exist of Births, or Burials (with ages of the deceased), and of Marriages, it is clearly advisable that actual Enumeration should take place in the Year next after a Decennary Year, as in 1831, so as to include the Register of 1830 and of the preceding nine Years; nor is repetition of such Enumeration desirable at a shorter period than Ten years:—not in England certainly, an established period possessing many conveniences of calculation and analogy, merely because it has been established; and because the expense of such an extended operation, though not heavily imposed on the national revenue, is not of small amount on the several Parishes and County-Rates collectively; so that any proposal for more frequent Enumerations will not be lightly entertained by the Legislature of the United Kingdom.

THE Rate of Increase of the Population of Great Britain has not varied much during the last Thirty Years, even when the Increase or Diminution of the Army, Navy, &c. is thus taken into the Calculation; but a more accurate knowledge of the Increase of Population may be obtained by adverting to the Increase of the Female Sex exclusively; thereby virtually omitting throughout the Calculation such of the Army, Navy, and Merchant Seamen as were not domiciled in Great Britain.

| YEARS        | WHEAT                       | WHEAT                             | Until the year 1792 the customary Quarter contained 72 Gallons ; but the Winchester Quarter of 64 Gallons was then enforced by law (31 G. III. c. 30) and was adopted in Windsor Market : Therefore, to carry on the requisite comparison, an additional Column of the price of 72 Gallons is prefixed to the prices of 64 Gallons. |                             |                            |                                           |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |

The above Columns may thus be read:—According to the Scale of Coincidence, the Vie Moyenne (the expectation of life at Birth) in the County of Rutland would be XL Years, the Increase of Population having been 19 ‰ Cent; but the Vie Moyenne in Rutland, (as calculated on the ages of the deceased) is XL Years, less 10 Months (i.e. 39 Years 2 Months.)

Thus the Vie Moyenne of 17 of the above Counties and of all England and Wales, appears to be regulated within One Year by the ‰ Centage Increase of Population, as indicated in the Scale of Coincidence:—14 within Two Years:—8 within Three Years:—Sussex and Cornwall (always known to be remarkably healthy Counties) exceed the Scale above Four and Five Years respectively:—Monmouthshire and the Counties of Wales are omitted for the reasons already assigned (see p. xxxi); and it must not be forgotten, that the above Table relies only on the Increase of Population during Thirty Years,—also that more than one-third of the existing Population are upwards of Thirty Years of Age.

The mark + plus denotes that the Inhabitants of the County so marked are more healthful, or that from some other cause they surpass the Vie Moyenne indicated by the Scale; the mark — minus denotes the contrary. If each Year in the upper Line of the Scale of Coincidence were divided into Five parts of 73 days each, answerably to every 1 ‰ Cent Increase of Population, the Result would be more correct, but not so distinct; and more exact arrangement is not difficult to those who have occasion for such accuracy.
